Maybe Politick A Little, Too?

Midwest Governors To Ponder State Problems

Romney, one of the frontrunners for the 1968 Republican presidential nomination, was expected to be accompanied by two of his top political strategists—Dr. Walter de Vries and Robert Jack McIntosh.

However, Republicans are in the minority of the 13 governors planning to attend. So the four-day conference may not be the ideal place for wheeling and dealing by a prospective GOP presidential candidate.

Spokesmen for the Michigan chief exeecutive said there would be no time for politics because of a crowded schedule. Romney will miss Monday night's activities because he must fly to Cleveland for a speech at a dinner of the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

Republican governors scheduled to attend are William H. Avery of Kansas, Nils A. Boe of South Dakota, Warren P. Knowles of Wisconsin, Romney, and the host, James A. Rhodes of Ohio.

The roster of Democratic governors includes Karl R. Rolvaag of Minnesota, William L. Guy of North Dakota, Roger D. Branigin of Indiana, Warren E. Hearnes of Missouri, Harold E. Hughes of Iowa, Otto Kerner of Illinois, Frank B. Morrison of Nebraska, and Edward T. Breathitt of Kentucky.

Gov. Rolvaag is chairman of the conference and Gov. Rhodes is vice-chairman.

Each of the governors will bring his own entourage of aides and state cabinet officers to participate in discussions of state problems.

Gov. Morrison To Lead Panel

Nebraska Governor Frank B. Morrison will preside over a Tuesday panel discussion at the Midwest Governors Conference in Cincinnati.

The governor is scheduled to leave this morning for the three-day meeting and return Wednesday evening.

Besides leading the discussion on state government and the education challenge, Gov. Morrison will participate in sessions concerning state planning and state and urban problems.

Also at the conference will be Joe Fisher of the governor's office; David Evans, special assistant to the governor; and Larry Heeren of the division of resources, who will speak in the planning session.

Viet Splits Not To Deter U.S.

LBJ: Yanks To Stay

Compiled From News Wires

Washington—President Johnson said Saturday U.S. determination in Vietnam will not falter from political splits in South Vietnam or wavering in the United States.

In what appeared to be both a warning to Hanoi and assurance to U.S. servicemen and citizens, Johnson told a news conference:

"I must frankly tell you that our intelligence indicates that the aggressor presently bases his hopes more on political differences in Saigon and Washington than on his military capacity in South Vietnam.

"While we do have differences and divisions, I want our men in the field and our people at home to know that our course is resolute, that our conviction is firm, and that we shall not be diverted from doing what is necessary in the nation's interest and the cause of freedom."

In more than 125 recent primary election campaigns across the country "not one candidate was able to make opposition to the resistance of aggression in South Vietnam a successful position," he said, concluding that this shows "the rest of us . . . are determined to see this through."

Encouraged

The President declared he is encouraged by Saigon steps toward a civilian regime so far and said, "We shall continue to back the Vietnamese effort to achieve government by the consent of the people —even as they fight the war."

—Left the door wide open to the possibility of an anti-inflation tax increase.

He said it is still too early to tell whether one is needed. He asserted that members of his cabinet who have made conflicting statements on the prospect of a hike are speaking only for themselves.

—Announced the resignation of Adm. William F. Raborn, 61, as head of the Central Intelligence Agency and the selection of Richard M. Helms, 53, now deputy director, as Raborn's successor.

The 38-minute meeting with reporters produced this additional news:

—Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey will go to Santo Domingo as official U.S. representative at the August inauguration of Joaquin Balaguer as president of the Dominican Republic.

—Johnson was hopeful that U.S. and Soviet proposals for a space peace treaty would "be carefully considered and made useful."

—The President again urged Congress to provide funds for the operation of the rent supplement program for needy families. The subsidy proposal was approved last session but congress has balked at voting money for it.

Oklahoma Protest Ends Peacefully; King's Marchers See Burning Cross

Gilley's offer to confer nearby with the demonstrators' leaders was rejected and he finally joined them at the amusement center where he discussed the park's segregated swimming pool. He promised to examine an ordinance drafted by the protestors and submit it to the City Council next Tuesday and also have the Human Relations Commission study the situation.

"I have the utmost confidence in our Human Relations Commission," the mayor said. "I ask you to look to this commission for a solution."

"We're going home now," said Mrs. Clara Luper, head of the Oklahoma City Youth Council of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

" . . . We have a commitment from the chairman of the Human Relations Commission that the commission will meet and try to work out a solution. The mayor came to us—he accepted our proposed ordinance . . ."

She added, "If we do have to come back, I promise you we will bring our friends from Oklahoma City. We have 3,000 members in the Youth Council there."

Dr. O. L. Parsons, commission chairman, also met with the estimated 200 demonstrators, many of whom left Oklahoma City Thursday.

A short time before, the demonstrators backed off the park property under threat of arrest.

The march ended about 15 miles from Belzoni and about 100 marchers rode on trucks into the town. There they were joined by nearly 300 local Negroes for a noisy march on the post office, where four federal registrars awaited them.

Negroes began filing before the federal officials to register to vote.

Europe Trip With Stamps?

Miami (UPI) — For a long time, John Duffy and his wife, Dorothy, carefully collected enough trading stamps to fill 1,228 books for an all-expense paid 21-day European vacation listed in the stamp company catalogue.

But when they went down to the redemption center the couple was told they couldn't have the trip.

The stamp company — Triple S. Blue Stamps Inc., of South Hackensack, N.J.,—said the stamps were good only if the saver gets them himself through the purchase of merchandise. To save 1,228 books, the company pointed out, one would have to make $200,000 in purchases.

Speech Full of Optimism

Saigon (AP)—Premier Nugyen Cao Ky said today that victory over the Communist Viet Cong is near and called for national unity in the final stages of the struggle.

In an optimistic message to the country on his first anniversary in power, Ky said the next year "will be crowned with democratic success and final victory over the Communists."

"I call on you to accept some sacrifices and build a stable home-front to support our fighters," Ky said.

He said that during its 12 months in office, his military government "was able to overcome all difficulties, stabilize the situation, thus opening the path to a better future with chances of final victory over the Communist aggressors soon."

It was the most optimistic appraisal of Vietnam's situation made by any statesman in recent months.

Meanwhile, in Hue government troops seized a loudspeaker system fron one pagoda and the coffins of three dissident soldiers from another Saturday to prevent their use by Buddhist extremists for incitements to further violence.

A fresh battalion of 500 Marines moved in, swelling government security forces to 2,800. And a new commander took over the dissidence-ridden 1st Vietnamese Division, which has headquarters in this former imperial capital 400 miles north of Saigon.

The seized public address system had been used by Buddhist agitators to make speeches against Premier Ky's administration.

By orders from Ky a paratrooper, Col. Ngo Quang Truong, replaced Brig. Gen. Phan Xuan Nhuan as commander of the 1st Division. Truong took over with a statement that he would be extremely hard on any subordinate involved in the Buddhist struggle.

Afield, American air strikes again highlighted the war against the Viet Cong. Key developments:

—U.S. fighter-bombers, responding to a report of the sighting of about 1,000 guerrillas, blasted a camp in a wooded area of the Mekong Delta 50 miles southwest of Saigon. Pilots said they killed about 40 and destroyed 50 structures.

—Guam-based B52 bombers, which started saturation attacks on Communist targets in South Vietnam June 18, 1965, hammered at two Viet Cong base camps near the Cambodian border 75 miles northwest of Saigon and at a Communist troop concentration 35 miles southwest of Da Nang.

Car, Road Safety Bills Stiffer Than LBJ Asked

Washington (AP)—Congress is moving toward enactment of auto and highway-safety legislation far more comprehensive than seemed likely a few months ago.

Highway-safety bills with stiffer provisions than those asked by President Johnson already have been approved by the Senate and House Public Works Committees.

Auto-safety measures now under consideration by the Commerce Committees of the two houses seem certain to go beyond what the administration asked by requiring imposition of federal vehicle-safety standards.

Although final congressional action is still many weeks away, it seems certain the eventual program will contain broad new power for the secretary of commerce to impose highway - safety standards, including vehicle inspection and driver education, and to require inclusion of several safety devices as standard equipment in all new cars starting with 1968 models.

Cold-Footed Groom?

Swank Wedding Up in Smoke—Only

Miami, Fla. (AP)—Miami's wedding of the year blew up Saturday in a cloud like the one the bride was supposed to walk through.

The pretty, blonde bride-to-be was all set, her father said, but the bridegroom slipped out of town on a plane.

The nuptials between Ronald Richard Rothstein, 23-year-old University of Miami law student, and Susan Grenald, daughter of a drugstore chain owner, had been set for the grand ballroom of the Fontainebleau hotel.

As a special feature, Susan was to have descended a pink staircase to the altar through a white cloud produced by a smoke machine, so she would "look like she's coming from heaven," her mother said.

Almost 300 guests were to have eaten a full course champagne dinner after cocktails and to have cut a six-foot-tall cake. The bride's father planned to send the couple around the world on an 83-day honeymoon.

But Susan's father announced Saturday, "The kid got cold feet and got on a plane. The wedding is off. It isn't postponed. It's canceled."

Gemini 10 to Try 3-Day Space Trip

Plan Rendezvous With Satellite To Pick Up Gemini 8 Package

Cape Kennedy (AP)—Astronaut Michael Collins will work in space outside his Gemini 10 capsule for 55-minute periods on two separate days during the three-day Gemini 10 adventure scheduled to begin July 18.

Daring Feat

Gemini 10 Command Pilot John W. Young and Collins will also try to pull off one of the most daring feats yet attempted — using the engine of one Agena rendezvous target satellite to power them through the skies to meet an already orbiting satellite.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration Saturday officially announced the launch date. News media have been carrying the July 18 date since June 3 — the day Gemini 9 Astronauts Thomas P. Stafford and Eugene A. Cernan rocketed skyward and cleared the launch pad for Gemini 10.

The busy 70-hour mission is scheduled to begin at 2:40 p.m. CST July 18 with the launch of an Agena space engine as Gemini 10's initial rendezvous target.

Navy Cmdr. Young and Air Force Maj. Collins, both 35 years old, are due to follow the Agena into space one hour 40 minutes later, at 5:20 p.m. —the first time in history American astronauts have ever been scheduled to blast off late in the day.

The late launch is necessary if the Gemini 10 crew are to rendezvous with another target satellite, the Agena space engine left over from the Gemini 8 mission March 16, because of that Agena's position in space.

Rendezvous

On Gemini 10's fourth orbit, about six hours after liftoff, the astronauts plan to rendezvous with their own 26-foot-long Agena over South Africa, and link up to it after a period of formation flying.

Young — veteran of America's first manned Gemini flight, Gemini 3 — and Collins, a rookie, will then use the Agena's 16,000-pound-thrust engine to propel them perhaps to a record altitude of 460 miles, in position to descend later and rendezvous with Gemini 8's Agena, now orbiting the globe about 247 miles high.

The actual rendezvous with that Agena will not occur until the third day.

On the second day in space, Collins is to open the hatch on Gemini 10, stand on the seat, poke the upper half of his body out into space and spend 55 minutes doing photographic experiments.

After rendezvousing with the Gemini 8 Agena the third day, Collins is to leave Gemini 10 using a 50-foot-long lifeline attached to the spaceship, to retrieve a package of scientific equipment attached to Gemini 8.

3rd NATO Probe Launched

Washington (UPI) — Congress, with one NATO inquiry already behind it and another still underway, launches a third Monday as though the other two didn't exist.

This time it's the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in the big Senate caucus room, scene of many of the Senate's most famous televised hearings. The leadoff witness will be McGeorge Bundy, Ford Foundation president and former special assistant for national security to Presidents Kennedy and Johnson.

The foreign Relations group, headed by Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., will have the NATO stage to itself Monday.

But Tuesday it will be running in open competition with Chairman Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., and his government operations subcommittee on national security and international operations.

Jackson, whose subcommittee began its hearings on the North Atlantic Treaty Organization a month ago, will hear Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara Tuesday.

Suharto Cautions Indonesians

Jakarta, Indonesia (AP)—Lt. Gen. Suharto, Indonesia's strongman ruler, has warned military representatives to the coming session of the nation's highest legislative body not to topple President Sukarno, informed sources have reported.

The Provisional Peoples Consultative Congress, under the 1945 constitution, is the highest authority in the nation. It meets Monday to start a session that will last until July 5.

Suharto's private warning to military delegates was aimed at blocking any moves to strip Sukarno of his title of President for life and make him a totally powerless, figurehead leader.

Congressional sources said this was not likely to happen now, despite anti-Sukarno pressures, mainly from student organizations. They contend his titles of president for life and great leader of the revolution are unconstitutional.

Suharto's warning on congressional action against Sukarno, who still retains widespread popularity, apparently stems from a desire to avoid stirring up Sukarno supporters throughout the country and particularly in Central and East Java, his home area.

Peking Hits Colleges

Hong Kong (UPI)—Communist China said Saturday it would revamp its entire university entrance requirements for students because it too closely followed "bourgeois" lines.

The immediate effect of the change, announced in a Peking radio broadcast monitored here, will be that the estimated 500,000 high school graduates who had planned to enter college in September will now have to wait until January.

Observers here speculated the revamping might extend far beyond just entrance requirements and could mean an overhaul of the entire higher educational system.

The decision was apparently tied to the power-struggle-and-purge now underway in China. Staffs at universities in Peking and Nanking have already been purged.

'California Growth Must Be Checked'

If the present net gain of about 1,500 new residents daily continues, there will be 1½ billion people in California in 100 years, about half the present population of the entire planet.

Congestion of such magnitude was described as "intolerable and impossible" by Robert C. Cook, president of the Population Reference Bureau, Inc. He said the problem presents an unprecedented challenge to human ingenuity.

The Population Reference Bureau is a private nonprofit educational organization publishing information on population trends and their economic and social effects.

Writing in the June issue of the bureau's population bulletin, Cook said California's current 19 million people already are faced with urgent housekeeping problems centering around "the basic essentials of existence: pure air and pure water for residential, industrial and agricultural use; sufficient land for living space; and the production of adequate energy to keep the whole complex operative."

Hanoi's Stand Is Firm

No Change In War Views

Tokyo (AP)— A Communist broadcast has suggested that Canada's special peace envoy, Chester Ronning, has failed to find any change in Hanoi's stand on ending the Vietnam war.

"He was given an explanation of the stand of the government of the Democratic Republic of (North) Vietnam as made clear in President Ho Chi Minh's letter to Prime Minister (Lester B.) Pearson's government dated Jan. 24, 1966," Hanoi's Vietnam News Agency said.

Ronning talked to Vietnamese officials in Saigon and Hanoi on a peace mission for Pearson's government last March. Ottawa officials disclosed Wednesday he had returned to Hanoi.

In the letter cited by the news agency, Ho turned down U.S. peace overtures and demanded that the United States recognize the Viet Cong and negotiate with them.

Dr. Nabrit . . . to AEC

Nabrit, the first member of his race to serve on the five member Atomic Energy Commission, is both a scientist and educator.

Before becoming president of Texas Southern 11 years ago, Nabrit taught in Morehouse and Atlanta University where he was dean of the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences.

Hyde will take over as head of the FCC from E. William Henry, who resigned. To fill the vacancy on the commission, Johnson announced he would nominate Nicholas Johnson, now a member of the Federal Maritime Administration.

The new chairman was first named to the FCC by former President Harry S. Truman in 1946. An Idaho Republican, he had served as an official of the commission since 1929.

Primary Duel Set In Maine

Runoff Set This Week

Washington (AP) — Gov. John H. Reed is being challenged for Republican renomination in the Maine primary Monday.

Making the run against Reed, who has held office since 1960, is former State Sen. James S. Erwin.

Nominees also will be picked in the primary for the U.S. Senate and for two House seats.

There is activity in North Carolina and Connecticut this week toward lining up party slates for the fall election. North Carolina has a runoff primary Saturday, and in Conneticut on the same day both Democratic and Republican parties, acting in conventions, will make nominations for six House seats.

Massachusetts Republicans will hold a convention Friday and Saturday to make endorsements for governor and senator. However, candidates who fail endorsement can still run in a primary Sept. 13.

Gov. John A. Volpe, seeking re-election, is unopposed for the convention's endorsement. The endorsement for senator will probably go to Edward W. Brooke, Negro state attorney general, but he is opposed by J. Alan MacKay, a 30-year-old Boston attorney.

The Massachusetts Senate seat to be filled in this year's election is now held by Republican Sen. Leverett Saltonstall, who decided to retire when his present term expires.

Republican Sen. Margaret Chase Smith is up for re-election in Maine and has no primary opposition.

De Gaulle to Moscow

On Monday President Charles de Gaulle of France begins a 12-day visit to the Soviet Union. In Western circles there is much speculation and considerable uneasiness about the purpose of the trip.

• • •

Most observers believe that De Gaulle views his visit to Moscow as part of a long-range plan for a new European alignment. There are at least two areas where it is believed that De Gaulle and the Soviet leaders are in accord.

• • •

These are that American "hegemony" in Europe is intolerable and that the peril of German militarism must at all costs must be kept in check. However it is expected that De Gaulle will advertise expanded trade rather than sign any military or political compact.

In spite of all the uneasy speculation on De Gaulle's trip, members of NATO meeting in Brussels refrained from forcing a showdown with France. The attitude seemed to be that even a passive partnership was preferable to French neutrality.

The nations of Europe are moving to soften the edges of the divisions between them. It is in the role and necessity for NATO on which France differs with its allies.

• • •

Secretary of State Dean Rusk says there is an obvious interest in moving toward peace with Russia, but the "main ingredient is our own solidarity; that NATO's defense machinery must be kept oiled and ready, both to meet any sudden stiffening with the Communist block and to impress upon the Soviets that the West can't be forced to the conference table."

• • •

It seems obvious that De Gaulle, keenly aware of the changes in Europe, is making every effort to exploit them for the glory of France.

This makes it vital that the United States and its NATO allies, because of their annoyance at France, do not make policy based on the status quo rather than one looking toward the future without risking the present security.

The Soviet Union may well be grateful to the French president for upsetting the equilibrium of NATO, always a thorn in the side of the Russians. But the Soviet leaders likely will be wary of De Gaulle who is a troublesome partner in any combine. They may envision De Gaulle as trying expand his influence and grab the initiative in the East, and this very well could be a part of his grandiose plans.

• • •

Lincoln Can Help Topeka

As it turned out, Topeka had plenty of volunteered manpower to help clean up from its recent tornado, without accepting assistance offered by Mayor Dean Petersen on behalf of Lincoln.

• • •

Still it was a fine gesture on the part of the Lincoln mayor and undoubtedly expressed the willingness of all Lincolnites to do what they could to help their sister capital city in Kansas.

• • •

The offer itself undoubtedly had some salutary effects. As Topeka Mayor Charles Wright Jr. reported, "It was very comforting to me to receive this offer and I want you to know that it was deeply appreciated."

Mayor Wright had a very pertinent suggestion for Lincoln residents—and any others—who might yet want to do something to ease the burden of that riddled Kansas community.

"If any of your people wish to contribute anything to the Red Cross or Salvation Army it will be gratefully accepted for our many disaster victims," said the mayor of the Kansas capital to the mayor of the Nebraska capital.

A capital idea, indeed.

It so happens that the Red Cross is just winding up an emergency appeal for funds in Lancaster County. The drive is still short of its goal and badly in need of the small gifts from well-meaning folks who have just put off making their contributions.

Donations for the emergency Red Cross drive may be sent to P.O. Box 166, Lincoln; for the Salvation Army, to 1100 Q St.

• • •

A WORLD OF HUMOR — By ART BUCHWALD

A Strong Anti-Bugging Law

Washington—Anyone who has been keeping up with Sen. Edward Long's invasion-of-privacy hearings is outraged to discover how much bugging and wiretapping has been going on in the United States. It appears that nobody is safe anymore from the "big ear" and it is hoped that some legislation will be passed soon to protect the rights of the American citizen.

Buchwald

I discussed this subject with Sampson Klutznick, a private detective who assured me that most private detectives were as much against bugging as their victims.

He said, "They should pass strong laws making it a crime to bug or wire tap any American citizen."

"That's for sure," I said.

"Of course, well have to exempt the FBI, because they must tap wires and bug people to find out who the criminals and Communists are in the United States.'

"Yeah, I guess so."

"And we should let the Internal Revenue Service continue bugging Americans so we know who aren't paying their taxes."

"Naturally, I said.

"Then its also very important that big companies be allowed to bug other big companies."

"What for?"

"To find out if they're being bugged."

"I hadn't thought of that."

• • •

"And," he said, "I don't think the law should apply to private detectives looking for evidence in divorce cases."

• • •

"Of course not. It's very important that a divorced person has a solid case against the guilty party, and how could we get it if we didn't use all the latest scientific devices?"

"But you would only bug the guilty party?"

"That's correct. An innocent person would have nothing to fear."

"What other exceptions would you make in passing a strong anti-wiretap law?"

"Politicans should be allowed to bug one another during a political campaign, and unions should be allowed to bug management, and management should be allowed to bug the unions, and salesmen could still bug customers, and members of the board of education should be allowed to bug teachers."

"The law should have teeth in it," Klutznick said, "or pretty soon the American people will have no privacy at all. Don't you agree?"

"100 per cent," I said. "Hey, is that a microphone in your martini?

"That's a violation of my constitutional rights."

"Maybe so, but how else are we going to know who is for the law and who is against it?"

ROSCOE DRUMMOND'S Opinion

Freedom Rears Its Head

Washington—Something explosive and unprecedented is happening behind the Iron Curtain. Freedom is trying to break out in a new way.

This is not just another little piece of liberalization trying to make communism more palatable or work a little better. It goes much farther than that.

Drummond

What is happening is that a project to publish an independent opposition magazine is being openly undertaken in Yugoslavia. The instigator is one of the most courageous anti-Communist intellectuals behind the Iron Curtain, Mihajlo Mihajlov, writer, professor, and incurable advocate of freedom.

He already has the support and the resources to begin publication and he is saying to his own government in Belgrade: will the Communist rulers dare honor the guarantees of a free press contained in their constitution or will they go back on these guarantees now that somebody is determined to use them?

Prof. Mihajlov is making it perfectly clear that his editorial policy will be pro-Socialist but anti-Communist and anti-Marxist. He is frankly stating that his political purpose is to end the one-party rule of the Communists and pave the way to meaningful elections, not only in Yugoslavia but throughout the Communist states of Eastern Europe.

His conviction is that of all the Communist countries Yugoslavia is ripe for the acceptance of an opposition press and, in the end, an opposition political party which will give the Communists a chance to prove whether or not they represent the majority of the Yugoslav people.

Can they accept the consequences of a free press and expect to survive?

Do they dare see a degree of freedom which would almost inevitably lead to free elections and end the political monopoly of the Communist party?

Or will the regime resort to police-state repression in order to crush, before it is born, the bold venture which Prof. Mihajlov and his supporters are at the point of undertaking.

• • •

In a statement which he released through Freedom House in New York, he made this appeal: "Unless an alarm is sounded in the West immediately, which will arrest the pressure of the police, the whole project will be ruined."

• • •

President Tito will not relish the condemnation of the free world if he turns back to the ultimate instrument of suppression. The Communists are very sensitive to massive criticism from abroad when their suffocation of free speech comes too badly into the open. They want to maintain the appearance of freedom—and eat it, too.

This is why Mihajlov wants the whole world to know that he is putting Tito on the spot.

Anatomy of a Modern Collegian

Provocative EDITORIAL — Topic in News FEATURE

By ROGER W. HEYNS
For Associated Press

The present generation of American college students is not easily characterized. There are more then 2,000 colleges and universities with more than five million students. They can't be put into simple categories any more than can their parents or the homes from which they come.

Some categorizing is unavoidable, however, in response to the interest and worry of the general public about what is happening on the nation's campuses. Social scientists, journalists' polls and university administrators have been trying to describe the college scene. These observers, in spite of their differences in viewpoint and method, have reached a remarkable degree of agreement.

The vast majority of students respond industriously to academic demands. They are better prepared, have better work habits and work harder than the students in the 1930's for example. Because academic demands are heavier, their extracurricular life is less active and what there is of it is likely to be personal and individual rather than organizational.

They are more interested in social and recreational activities, rather than in student government, student groups or running the campus newspaper.

Many in every student body are planning a career that calls for education beyond the bachelor of arts or bachelor of science degrees. Graduate or professional school lies ahead. This gives satisfactory academic performance a significance that it did not have in previous generations.

Dr. Kenneth Keniston of Yale has called this large group of students the "professionals." The professionals are intent on becoming the experts our society seems to need.

So far then, all observers describe a student population that is well prepared, serious, hardworking, concentrating on academic work, and giving little attention to much of the organizational extracurricular college life that used to be very much a part of the college scene.

None of this, of course, accounts for the restlessness, the turbulence of many of the campuses of America. The calm devotion to learning certainly does not adequately describe the scene at many of our 2,000 campuses, and particularly the large universities.

Students are participating in the social and political discussions of the time with what may indeed be additional vigor and intensity. But even here we need perspective.

The Vietnam war makes an enormous difference. For the college generation, the war is not an academic matter; in a matter of days or months the discussion turns into active involvement for many young men. The debate and the turmoil inside the university is part of the same debate that is taking place outside but it has understandably greater shrillness and urgency in the university.

The civil rights issues and its campaigns also give the campus intensity, unrest and vigorous involvement. Here again, the university both reflects and leads the society in which it lives. The sensibilities of all of America about legal, social, and economic injustices for minorities, and especially for Negroes, were slow in awakening.

It is true that the student of today has more interest in the social problems of his time than did the students of previous generations, but it is important to recognize that this heightened awareness also characterizes the society at large. This generation of parents is also more sensitive than its predecessors to the problems of race, poverty and medical care.

All observers agree that the students with these social concerns and the desire to put their ideas into action are by and large serious, responsible and idealistic.

The number who are truly alienated from society and basically hostile are few in number. They are, however, usually present in the social action projects of the student activists and they give these events the mixture of idealism and belligerence that makes coming to terms with them difficult.

As Dr. Keniston points out, the activists tend to be moralistic and very personal in their efforts at social reform. Their objectives are usually shortrun and they often require only a minimum personal commitment. It is easier to picket for a few hours than to undertake to tutor an illiterate or a drop-out for many hours over many weeks.

The activists and their temporary allies, the genuinely hostile, are relatively few in number but they have a special appeal to the larger body of students. They call attention to important causes and valid social problems. They appeal to moral values and they document the hypocrisy of their elders extensively.

All this has a special message to young men and women who are in search of a set of standards truly their own and which they can defend. Many students are uncomfortable about their beliefs, or lack of them, and their young colleagues who speak with such moral conviction and such assurance, have, as a result, a considerable impact on them.

The moral confusion in the adult world doesn't help. It is responsible for the fact that the student, groping for standards of behavior, exudes an unhappiness with things as they are. Many students are particularly disappointed with the faculty for failing to help them to find meaning for their lives.

College students today have had an unusual amount of influence on the world around them. In their homes, as children, they participated in decisions about family purchases and vacations. In elementary and high schools, they had an increasing effect on the way these institutions are governed.

In fact, universities have not kept pace with these trends. For many, becoming a university student has meant a more subordinate role, with less influence than they had had before coming.

Much of the character of the present determination to influence the academic life reflects, I think, the fact that the mechanisms of student participation are inadequate and the fact that areas in which participation is sought include the most hallowed, and the most earnestly protected from student interference, namely, academic affairs.

This is not to exaggerate student interests in dictating curriculum or telling professors how and what to teach. Indeed, our experience has been that students may in fact neglect even the best opportunities to debate and discuss academic issues with the faculty or "the Establishment."

They do, however, want to have visible, viable, and effective machinery for stating their views

I see signs that students are recognizing that — however useful—the boycott, the sit-in are not in the long run suitable for educational institutions, nor indeed as the methods of choice for institutions in the society at large.

This insight is coming slowly, and it could be speeded up in two ways: on the campus, by improving the processes for change, particularly by making the decision-making apparatus more sensitive to student opinions and ideas. Off the campus, in business, government and other social insituations, by providing more evidence that an individual with ideas can make a difference. that there is a resiliency and a flexibility in "the Establishment."

It would be unfair to suggest that today's college students are indifferent to well established and successful solutions, or that they are interested in change for its own sake. They are intelligent, they are idealistic, and they have, in the best American tradition, the notion that affairs could be better.

If we are to captivate their attention and their talent, our institutions must give evidence of a confident eagerness to be joined by the young people from America's colleges and universities.

He's 'Prez' to Her

The Other Woman in LBJ's Life

By FRANCES LEWINE, AP

Courtnay Lynda Valenti wandered into the President's White House office, sat down and picked up his inter-office phone.

She jabbered away softly despite the presence of President Johnson and a high-level conference of congressional leaders of both parties. From time to time, she paused to stare critically at one speaker after another, including the President. Courtenay made no comments.

Later, a Republican congressman requested a picture of "the marvelous little girl who took part in our conference." He said he's never before attended a presidential meeting "with a little girl monitoring it."

Courtenay is 2½ years old now. But she's already had more inside moments with the President of the United States and his advisers than many a politician.

• • •

Johnson calls her a few times a week to chat. She rides in his helicopters, greets him at church, visits his ranch. And, not long ago, she stood triumphantly on the front seat of the President's car while he drove. She discussed the passing countryside with him and his secretary of defense at Camp David.

The sprightly little girl with soft brown hair and eyes holds her own with the tall man in the White House. When he asks her to do something, she just tells him, "Wait a minute, Prez."

Courtenay is acknowledged as the President's "favorite girl friend." He even has an album of pictures inscribed to her that way.

A buss for the President.

Courtenay's romance with the President started when she started to walk—and that was early, "about 9 or 10 months," says her father and chief press spokesman, Jack Valenti.

But Courtenay really made her debut when she went to visit the President at Bethesda Naval Hospital after his gall bladder operation.

• • •

In a lavishly photographed scene, Johnson called the little girl over and said "besito" (little kiss) and Courtney bestowed the requested kiss again and again. When the President said "who do you love," she came up on cue: "I love Prez."

Nebraska's Fourth Estate

Government leaders and government actions drew editorial comment from Nebraska newspapers last week.

Recalling the recent special legislative session, the Falls City Journal was in agreement with Sen. Terry Carpenter's proposal to amend a bill preventing suits by individuals to collect illegally assessed intangible taxes in the wake of the Supreme Court's decision holding that foreign corporation stocks be taxed at book rather than market value. (The amendment lost 46-1.)

The Journal noted, "We dislike to see the right of appeal taken away from citizens for any reason."

Concerning the upcoming battle between Gov. Morrison and Sen. Curtis for the Senate seat, the Alliance Times-Herald writes that if their presentations at the Nebraska Stock Growers Convention were true examples of true rival oratory and delivery, "Sen. Curtis came out ahead."

Supporting its contention, the paper noted that Curtis was interrupted by applause and received a standing ovation while "Morrison dulled his windup by inviting questions, got none and thereby precluded any ovation that might have been awaiting his closing remarks."

The Pierce County Leader has termed Pierce County and the others abiding by the re-appraisals approved by the State Board of Equalization as "suckers."

"A county such as Thomas County and five other counties in a similar position expect 'law-abiding' counties to pay their own share of state taxes but also a portion of the six counties that are going along for a 'free ride' in state taxes . . . at least they are failing to a pay 79% of their share of state taxes," commented the Leader.

"Something should be done to get the six outlaw counties in line," the Leader adds.

Educational TV

Lincoln — Thank you for the excellent editorial entitled "Objectivity of ETV", (Sunday Journal and Star, June 12). It was one of the finest of the year; and one of the best statements of the necessity for objective reporting that I have read.

Judging from the amount of critical comment concerning the program about the John Birch Society in Missouri, I was afraid that their tactics of intimidation had begun to succeed here.

We still have some people who are courageous enough to fight them.

DELORES DERYKE

Political Shifts

The polls, plus the California primary elections, have shown that the President no longer commands the great majority which elected him in 1964. Though this is the fact of the matter, there is room for much difference of opinion about why this has happened and what it means.

Lippmann

Walter Lippmann on Issues — Editorial Feature

Certainly the gross figures of the polls do not reflect a simple alignment of opinion "for" and "against" our part in the Vietnamese war. The current majority disapproves of the President's conduct of the war. But this statistical majority certainly includes more people who want him to win the war by hitting harder than it does of those who want to reduce the war and to negotiate it. In this sense the President still has a potential majority behind him.

His trouble is that there is the greatest doubt whether the war can be won by hitting harder. This doubt is in the President's own mind. Otherwise he would not hesitate to hit harder.

• • •

Change in Position

The California primary means, so we are told, that the Johnson consensus has disappeared and that there is a polarization of opinion toward the two extremes of the right and the left. What, then, is causing such a polarization of opinion?

• • •

It has been caused, I believe, by the radical change which has taken place between the President's position in the election campaign of 1964 and the course he has followed since he was inaugurated in 1965. The cardinal principle of the election campaign was the promise and the pledge to give first priority to the long neglected internal problems of the United States.

• • •

There was a general understanding that after three wars and the cold war in 50 years, the time had come to devote our principal energies and resources to our own domestic affairs.

Opinion Analysis Of Author

But the President has done just the opposite of what everyone believed he would do. In mid-1966 the country is involved in another war, and once again our minds are diverted and the money is not available for what have become the dangerous conditions of our urbanized society.

The vital center which was the heart of the Johnson consensus has been smashed —not by the Vietnamese war alone, but by the combined effect of an ugly and unprofitable war which causes us to neglect our critical needs.

The radical reversal of the President's position between September, 1964, and February, 1965, when he started the bombing of North Vietnam, has destroyed the consensus and has caused the polarization toward the right and the left which makes us all so very anxious.

• • •

There is no easy solution available to the President or to us. The President has misconceived and misjudged the war, and the consequences, whether he leans now to the hawks or to the doves, will be bloody, embarrassing and sterile. While the war goes on, the mood of the country grows angrier, and the hope of dealing with our truly gigantic problems by reason, goodwill and consensus is vanishing.

• • •

One can no longer take for granted what everyone took for granted six months ago—that the election of 1968 is already settled. The grinding impact of the war and of the enforced standstill in our internal affairs could in the course of two years be so destructive to the Democratic party that the Republican nominee would be very attractive indeed.

Castro May Be Losing Political Hold in Cuba

President Dorticos Said To Be Gaining Stature

Chicago Daily News Special

Washington — The State Department added weight to speculation that Premier Fidel Castro may be losing some of his power in Cuba.

"It is a fact that Castro uncharacteristically has not been in the foreground of events since May 1," press officer Robert McCloskey told a news conference.

Two events in Cuba have stirred speculation that Castro's absolute hold on the Communist island may be slipping, with President Osvaldo Dorticos gaining increased stature.

On June 4, Dorticos delivered a major policy address in Havana while Castro sat speechless on the platform.

Last Tuesday, Dorticos presided over a meeting of government leaders that resulted in a mass mobilization of workers to repair damage from hurricane Alma. Castro did not attend.

Castro delivered his last major address on May 1, which is Communism's international holiday.

McCloskey said the State Department has received reports of "widespread speculation inside Cuba about his whereabouts."

Other State Department sources said, however, that Castro has not disappeared and they are not wondering about where he is. They are more interested in whether his one-man rule may be giving way to more collective leadership.

Dorticos has been president of Cuba since 1959 and is considered more moderate and easier to deal with than Castro.

If Castro is slipping, speculation centers on two possible reasons:

—He may be ill. Some foreign observers thought he looked tired and upset when he sat on the speaker's platform beside Dorticos two weeks ago.

—Perhaps he is being deemphasized politically. The organization of the Cuban Communist Party has been becoming progressively tighter and more advanced since last fall.

A Gruff Sergeant, But He Understood

Napa, Calif. (AP)—Big George Birdsell looked like a gruff, rough, tough army sergeant. And he was.

On the back of a picture he sent his wife and six children from Saigon June 3 he wrote:

"From either side I still look mean. I guess I've been a sergeant too long to look pleasant."

WIREPHOTO

Birdsell . . . he knew

But underneath, he was an understanding man. He knew what it was all about.

"The average Vietnamese is at odds most of the time," the 38-year-old army career man wrote his family a month ago from Saigon where he had been stationed since last November with an intelligence unit.

Content

"They don't stick together and are content to let things run themselves. As long as no one bothers him, he is happy.

If he doesn't have anyone point him in the right direction, give him a shove and tell him what to do, he just doesn't do anything. This fact alone just opens the door to Communists or anyone else who wants to run things or be something or to go on to higher places.

"One of the reasons the Vietnamese are this way is because they have been subjugated for centuries, somewhat like the Koreans by Japan and, in our own backyard, the Negroes by the whites."

Big George already had been in the army for 18 years when he went to Vietnam.

His two older children, Teresa, 12, and George, 11, were born while George and his wife, Elsie, were stationed in France. Vallerie, 10, and Rhonda, 8, enlarged the family while he was on duty in the state of Washington. Michael, 5, and Kathy, 3, were born in Arizona.

Special School

Then Big George went to a special army intelligence school in Baltimore.

"Before he went to that school, he didn't know for sure whether we should be in Vietnam," Mrs. Birdsell said.

"But after he came home from school, he had no doubt that we should. He said if we weren't there, the same thing would be happening here before long. He said those people over there need us."

Big George sent all six of his children Vietnamese clothes for Easter; asked that they be photographed in them so he could see how they looked.

Mrs. Birdsell got the pictures this week. Thursday she sat down at the dining room table to write her husband a letter. He had written her devotedly every other day. But there had been no letter for 10 days. She wondered about that.

Knock at Door

"The secretary of the army has asked me to express his deep regret," the telegram read, "that your husband, Sgt 1C George D. Birdsell, died in Vietnam on June, 16, 1966, as a result of gunshot wound received while trying to stop another individual from leaving the compound."

The caller told Mrs. Birdsell that her husband's company commander was writing her a letter giving the details of how he died.

Presumably his death involved an escaping war prisoner. His intelligence role called frequently for interrogation of such prisoners.

Confessions' Decision Awaited

Supreme Court to Rule on Retroactivity

Washington (AP) — Law enforcement officials, still pondering unhappily this week's Supreme Court decision strictly limiting the use of confessions, are waiting anxiously for the other shoe to drop.

It may thump to the floor of the majestic courtroom Monday, probably the last session of the term, in the form of a followup ruling giving the decision retroactive application.

If the justices so rule—and judging by the narrowness of last Monday's decision this is anything but a sure bet — prosecutors and police officials across the land are almost certain to form a chorus of criticism.

With its 5-4 ruling the Court barred for the future any use at trial of incriminating statements obtained from suspects in police custody whose constitutional rights to remain silent and to have a lawyer's assistance were not safeguarded.

Right Extended

The decision spelled out a 1964 landmark ruling by the High Court which, for the first time, extended the right to legal aid to suspects undergoing station-house interrogation.

Thus, Monday's ruling clearly applies to convictions that were still in the appeals stage on Monday. It immediately voided a federal bank robbery conviction and three state convictions for rape, robbery and murder.

The questions now are:

—Does the ruling apply to cases in which all avenues of direct appeal were exhausted by Monday?

—Does the ruling apply to cases in which all avenues of direct appeal were exhausted by the time of the 1964 decision?

If the Supreme Court says Monday that last week's ruling is retroactive, thousands of cases will be subject to reopening. This would have a substantial effect on the machinery of federal and state courts.

Before 1965, Supreme Court decisions that established new constitutional rules were assumed to have retroactive application.

Retroactive Effect

However, that year the Supreme Court refused to give retroactive effect to an earlier historic ruling that state courts must exclude from criminal trials evidence obtained during an unconstitutional search or seizure.

And last January the Court refused to make retroactive a 1965 decision prohibiting state courts from allowing comment to the jury on a defendant's failure to testify.

Justice Potter Stewart, announcing the 5-2 decision, said "to require . . . states now to void the conviction of every person who did not testify at his trial would have an impact upon the administration of criminal law so devastating as to need no elaboration."

Twenty-seven states, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands joined in a friend-of-the-court brief that said "the integrity of the judicial system . . . would be seriously undermined" by retroactive application.

Now it is the Court's turn to speak.

Union Leaders Study Methods Of Production

Washington (UPI) — Labor union leaders will go to school this summer to learn how to match wits with management in this automation era.

It's a matter of self-defense, the AFL-CIO said Saturday in announcing a program for business agents and education and research personnel in 128 unions.

The courses were developed jointly by the AFL-CIO and the University of Wisconsin and will begin July 18. They will teach union men to speak intelligently in contract negotiations about new machinery and production methods.

"The battle of wits between workers and today's sophisticated production machinery has become so keen that unions are sending their officials to college in self-defense," the AFL-CIO statement said.

Viet War Support Falling

Demos Favor Continuing

By GEORGE GALLUP

If the American people were given two alternatives — continuing the war in Vietnam or withdrawing our troops during the next few months — their vote would be 4-to-3 to continue.

Although a greater proportion of people sampled in the latest survey (48%) say the U.S. should stay in Vietnam than say the U.S. should get out (35%), sentiment favoring withdrawal has grown considerably since a year ago.

In June, 1965, results to a comparable question showed opinion nearly 7-to-2 in favor of continuing the war.

The average citizen obviously is not a military expert, and does not have access to information available only to the administration. Yet his views are important for a government whose policies to be successful require public understanding and support.

Among the general public, Democrats tend to favor continuing the war, but Republicans are about evenly divided in their views. A greater proportion of men than women would like to see the U.S. stay in Vietnam.

Education is a factor, with the better-educated more inclined to favor continuing the war.

Other survey evidence helps explain why a sizeable minority of people favor withdrawing and why uncertainty exists about what the U.S. should do now.

Only one person in six anticipates an all-out victory in Vietnam. A majority (54%) think the conflict will end in a compromise peace settlement, and one in 17 expects defeat.

Hopes for an early end to the fighting in Vietnam are dwindling. A smaller proportion today (27%) thinks the fighting will last two years or less than did so last January (39%), while uncertainty over the duration of the war has increased markedly.

The public is about evenly divided in their opinion as to whether the South Vietnamese want the U.S. to stay in their country.

About half of U.S. adults think the U.S. should pull its troops out of Vietnam if a majority of the South Vietnamese want the U.S. to do so; one in three say the U.S. should not.

—Opinion is closely divided on whether Communist China will enter the war in Vietnam with its armed forces. About three persons in 10 do not express an opinion on this matter.

—The proportion who think the U.S. made a mistake in sending troops to fight in Vietnam in the first place increased from 25% in March to 36% in May. However, majorities in both surveys said they thought the U.S. did the right thing in sending troops.

Dormitory Taxability Questioned

Hiram Scott Hearing Due

When his office staff can get around to it, probably in the fall, State Tax Commissioner George Dworak plans to hold a public hearing on the taxibility of dormitory and food service facilities of Hiram Scott College in Scottsbluff.

The Scotts Bluff County Board of Equalization has ruled these facilities tax exempt, while putting other college property on the tax rolls.

A 1963 law assigned the tax commissioner responsibility to review and either affirm or deny county board exemption decisions.

Recently, the Jefferson, Ia., County Board of Review at Fairfield ruled that Parsons College is a profit-making institution and therefore must pay property taxes.

Hiram Scott as well as the still-unopened John J. Pershing College at Beatrice are from the Parsons College pattern.

The Iowa law granting educational property tax exemptions is more restrictive, however, than is Nebraska's.

Dworak said the hearing would be to determine the facts of the Hiram Scott institution.

Presently, all dormitories owned and operated by Nebraska's church-related colleges are exempt from property taxation.

Parsons has received national publicity as a college which makes money as well as issuing baccalaureate degrees.

MBIAC Meets In Scottsbluff

Scottsbluff—The 145th meeting of the Missouri Basin Inter Agency Committee (MBIAC) begins here Tuesday with a 9 a.m. executive subcommittee meeting followed by a 1 p.m. standing committee meeting.

Wednesday morning the group will tour the Gering Valley Watershed and Scottsbluff National Monument. The annual Missouri River Basin planning report to the MBIAC will be heard Wednesday afternoon. Gov. Frank Morrison will speak at the banquet.

STATEHOUSE LETTER

There are no known takers thus far volunteering to sponsor any comprehensive conflict of interest legislation in the 1967 state senate.

It's tough writing meaningful rules of ethical conduct governing, for instance, bankers voting on bank acts, or liquor or tobacco dealers or promoters voting on excise tax increases. Legitimately, the argument can be advanced a legislator is acting for his wider constituency, not his personal interest. But how can one be sure?

Then there are questions, from time to time, concerning lawyers sitting on various state boards. In recent months several occasions have arisen where lawyers are hired by citizens dealing with state agencies, which agencies in turn are ruled in policy matters by the same legal eagles.

Fruitless Challenges

Gov. Frank Morrison's persistent and so far fruitless challenges to Sen. Carl Curtis for public debates, confrontations, appearances, etc., have historical roots.

Morrison did the same thing in 1958 when he challenged another Republican senator, Roman Hruska.

The governor-to-be finally caught the GOP caravan with Hruska on Oct. 23, 1958, in Plattsmouth, after a cops and robbers type chase across Cass County. The two men then dueled by loud speakers.

Governor 'Bugged'

Once upon a time there was a Nebraska governor who pondered long and hard why information was leaking out of his office.

He even searched adjoining rooms, including those on differnet floors, for a possible mechanical listening device. It was quite a sight, the governor of Nebraska, on hands and knees, searching for "the bug."

In the long run, the leak turned out to be an instrument with two legs

Of Lesser Note

John Everroad, Republican lieutenant governor nominee, had a two-column "thank you" ad in the newspaper published by Omaha Sen. Sam Klaver, one of the people Everroad vanquished in the primary election.

After all this time, you'd think somebody would have caught that "County Men Tall Ill Levy" error in the state accountant's monthly report. See Page 3, fellahs.

A heavier-than-anticipated loan will be dumped on the state's computer beginning July 1. Between 15,000 and 20,000 warrants now written by counties under the medical assistance program will be taken over by the State Welfare Dept. Direct mailing should speed some payments to doctors as much as a week.

Small, golden-fringed Nebraska state flags are high on the request list received by the governor's office from military personnel in Vietnam, says Mrs. Jo Fisher, the governor's committee coordinator.

While Gov. Morrison was basking in the sunshine of Lady Bird Johnson's warmth, Republican gubernatorial nominee Nobby Tiemann was attracting considerable applause from the 7,500 attending the College World Series in Omaha.

The glazed look on many state administrative faces last week come from first exposure to 1967-69 budget request forms.

Salt Creek's Channel Was Unlovely in 1904

By DEL SNODGRASS

Hal Schroeder, general manager of the Salt Valley Watershed Dist., ran across a yellowed 1904 Lincoln newspaper clipping while thumbing through the records of the old Sanitary Dist., which made extensive Salt Creek channel improvements through Lincoln during the years

The clipping interested Schroeder because the Army Corps of Engineers recently spent nearly $1 million widening and deepening part of the channel and plans to complete the job next year.

A Lincoln reporter must have been writing in depth when he described a 1904 inspection trip of the channel:

"All along the stream were seen the bodies of defunct animals. Here a horse, there a cow, with dogs and cats innumerable. These must be taken out and buried, declared the board members, as in the summer months when the stream is low and they are uncovered, the stench that rises reaches even as far as the city.

"On several sandbars, these carcasses had lodged and presented anything but a lovely sight to the visitors."

Water Storage

Care to guess how many gallons of water can be stored in Lake McConaughy near Ogallala in western Nebraska?

According to the Central Nebraska Public Power and Irrigation Dist., which owns the dam, the reservoir has a total capacity of 2 million acre feet.

So, since there are about 326,000 gallons of water in one acre foot, the lake can hold 652 billion gallons.

The lake filled to 1,869,500 acre feet this spring, Central reported, which means there are 609,457,000,000 gallons of water stored behind the dam. Another 42,543,000,000 gallons would fill it.

Water in the reservoir is used to irrigate 255,000 acres of farmland in the Platte River Valley. An acre foot, incidentally, covers one acre of land with one foot of water.

50th Anniversary

The 50th anniversary of the cooperative federal and state road building program will be observed next month.

It was exactly 50 years ago July 11 that President Woodrow Wilson signed into law the first federal-aid highway act.

Since that time, according to the U.S. Bureau of Public Roads, Uncle Sam has appropriated $45.7 billion for highway improvements, with $35.6 billion coming in the last 10 years.

Businessmen Hold Key to Shopping Areas

By LEO SCHERER

City officials quickly will tell you that areas such as College View, Havelock, University Place and Bethany need some far-reaching planning.

Some of the areas now lack adequate off-street parking, properly zoned business space, expansion facilities and adequate street accesses.

However, City Council members have indicated that they want the leaders of these communities to come up with development plans and then come to City Hall for possible help to implement them.

Already understaffed, the city planning department says it has a backlog of city projects and doesn't have the time or trained personnel to prepare a comprehensive development plan for each suburban section of the city.

Around City Hall

Old West Spirit

The Old West spirit could be seen around City Hall last week.

Many city employes wore western clothes and even the mayor put away the usual suit and tie for western wear.

Never Vote

You might be shocked to discover how many Lancaster County registered voters never go to the polls.

There have been local elections in which fewer than 25% of the registered voters cast ballots.

City-County Election Commissioner B. J. Holcomb has many reasons why registered voters don't go to the polls. One of these is apathy.

Election records show that the issues involved usually determine the turnout and if there isn't a hotly contested issue the vote doesn't get out.

Highway Work

The Kansas Highway Dept. has announced plans to rebuild Highway 183 from the Kansas-Nebraska line south of McCook to its junction at Oberlin with U.S. 36.

Lancaster Might Be Kept From Giving Tax Refunds

By HAROLD SIMMONS

Opinion Analysis Of Author

Lancaster County is in a unique position among the state's 93 counties. It faces the possibility of being legally prohibited from continuing the payment of refunds on illegal tax penalties collected in 1962-64.

It was the only county in the state that decided to notify individuals and businesses they were eligible for a refund instead of letting taxpayers check that possibility for themselves.

This puts the county in the position of having indirectly, and in some cases directly, told people to wait until the county sent them a legal form for their refund and not to file a claim for the refund immediately.

Now, with passage of LB2 last week by the special session of the Nebraska Legislature, the refund law is being interpreted in some legal quarters to mean that if refund claims have not yet been filed, it is too late.

LB2 cut from two years to 60 days the time taxpayers have to file a claim for refund of a penalty after a court determines it is illegal.

Nov. 22 Deadline

Strictly interpreted, this would mean the deadline for filing claims for refunds of illegal penalties collected in 1962-64 for late filings and omissions of personal property would be Nov. 22, 1965.

Since Lancaster County began making refunds last Feburary, it has approved and paid $31,521 on 1,455 claims.

Still unpaid are about 1,500 additional claims for refunds that may total up to another $30,000.

Lancaster County Assessor Arthur Davis said he does not think a strict interpretation is "right" since his office worked "in good faith that we had two years to make the refunds."

State Tax Commissioner George Dworak noted that LB2 and the original law amended by LB2 states that "the person claiming a refund shall file a claim with the county board for such refund . . ."

'Beyond Duty'

Dworak said he thinks Davis "went above and beyond the call of duty" in telling people to wait until they received notice of the refund from the county.

Davis, noting there are some 3,000 refunds for the three-year period, said he thought his method was the "only fair and efficient way to make refunds."

Making refunds as he has been doing, Davis said, assures that everyone eligible for a refund will receive notice and his office will not be flooded with requests by people not eligible.

What Davis did was to have his staff check tax records to find who was eligible for a refund.

Those eligible are sent a notice by mail. Signing the notice and returning it to Davis is their claim for a refund which is then sent to the county board for approval and on to the treasurer for payment.

1,000 Not Notified

Davis has sent 2,212 notices to people eligible for refunds of penalties paid in 1962 and 1963. Approximately 1,000 eligible for refunds of 1964 penalties have not yet been notified.

As sent to the Legislature by Gov. Frank Morrison, LB2 made no change in the time limit for filing claims for refunds.

State Sen. Eric Rasmussen of Fairmont proposed the law be amended to 60 days instead of two years and it was approved.

Rasmussen said he proposed the amendment so the time limit on refunds would be put back to what it was prior to passage of LB930 (the law amended by LB2) by the 1965 Legislature.

He said the original refund law had limited the time of filing to 30 days but that was extended to two years so refunds could be made to paraplegic veterans.

Rasmussen said he was not aware of Lancaster County's method of making refunds when he proposed the amendment. He said he could not understand doing it that way since this "wasn't the intent of the Legislature" in extending the time to two years.

Situation Studied

The county attorney's office is now studying the situation since Dworak notified county officials it was the opinion of his office that refunds could not be made after June 14, the day LB2 became law.

Waiting a legal opinion, and possibly a court test of the law, are those eligible for refunds of penalties paid in 1964 and those who have not received refunds from 1962 and 1963.

Salary Level of Non-Farm Workers Being Forced Up

By DICK HERMAN

Under the pressure of a tight labor supply, especially in growth areas, Nebraska's level of wages paid nonfarm workers is being forced up.

As an example, State Labor Dept. Director Lambert Eitel reported his agency's Norfolk office last year received orders for common labor at a $1.15 per hour wage rate.

Now, the going wage for common labor in the Norfolk region ranges at $1.75 to $1.85 per hour.

Eitel Saturday revealed the department is just beginning a research project at all 15 state employment offices to see how greatly wages offered by prospective employers have climbed within the past three years.

"We are aware the labor shortage situation has had some effect on wages," Eitel said, "but right now we don't know how much."

Hikes Limited

Eitel's comments and isolated agency data were supplied against a background of grumbling in some state government agencies over Gov. Frank Morrison's salary policies.

Morrison has informed all code departments under his direct command that in making up their 1967-69 budget requests, average annual wage and salary increases be limited to 3.5%.

This ceiling covers the Depts. of Institutions, Labor, Roads, Welfare, Banking, Insurance, Motor Vehicles, Administration and Agriculture and the tax commissioner's staff.

The same 3.5% average pay boost restriction was recommended by the governor for all other agencies of state government, except institutions of higher education.

Administrative Budget Officer William E. Daugherty said pay boundaries for University of Nebraska and state college faculty still are being formulated.

Increase Sought

(Saturday, NU Board of Regents President Clarence Swanson of Lincoln disclosed Regents have privately agreed to seek an increased 1967-69 tax fund appropriation of some 70% for all University activities.

(The University and the state colleges, like the Dept. of Education and Health and the Game, Parks and Forestation Commission among others, are independent of the governor in initial budgeting practices and decisions.)

Morrison's 3.5% pay ceiling for 1967-69 contrasts with the informal guidelines of 2% to 5% worked out for 1965-67 by the Legislature's Budget Committee.

Those guides applied to different skill classifications of state workers.

Inflation at Work

Since the fourth quarter of 1965, however, national inflationary factors have been at work vigorously, economists say. Part of this pressure is caused by labor shortages.

Within recent days, further evidence of the collapse of the Johnson's administration's 3.2% annual wage and price guideline was documented.

In Nebraska, Eitel pointed

Hill-Burton Funds Plan Considered

Advisory Group OKs

Consideration of the 1966-67 state hospital plan by which federal Hill-Burton construction funds are distributed will be taken up at the State Health Board's 1 p.m. meeting Monday.

The board's State Advisory Council on Hospitals and Medical Facilities approved the plan Friday at an all-day meeting in Hastings.

If the State Health Board approves the document Monday it will be forwarded to U.S. Public Health Service for review.

This year's revision divides the state into 33 service areas, showing each area's existing hospital beds, whether or not they conform to national standards, bed needs and respective priority for federal aid in relation to the entire state.

Major Factors

Consideration of non-fire resistant construction if two projects within a priority category are equal, community planning, population density and professional, medical and nursing education are major factors for getting federal funds.

Using only general hospital project applications now on file, Pangborn reports Hastings and Superior (making up service area 17) have top "A" priorities for both general consturction and modernization replacement funds. There are no other "A" priorities for general construction funds, also known as Part C money in the Hill-Burton program.

The Fremont service area (Dodge County Memorial Hospital), Lincoln (St. Elizabeth) and Omaha (Lutheran, Bishop Clarkson and Immanuel) also hold "A" top priorities for modernization funds in the proposed state hospital plan under consideration.

'B' Priorities

Nine service areas hold "B" priorities under the new construction category: Ogallala, Ainsworth, Loup City, McCook, Fairbury, Hebron, Plainview, Sidney and Crawford.

Seven service areas have "B" priorities in the comparitively new modernization money classification: Ogallala, McCook, Fairbury, Hebron, Sidney, Oakland and West Point.

Pangborn says the final extent to which Nebraska can help hospital construction projects this year hinges upon S3009 before Congress currently. This would provide hospitals with a 90% loan, of which 40% would be forgiven.

Because of the impact of this legislation on project applications, the State Hospital Advisory Council membership agreed with Pangborn not to schedule the annual application hearing until the outcome of S3009 is known.

State Health Board members Monday also will act on a Council recommendation that $80,000 in the state's Hill-Burton funds be guaranteed in construction of the University of Nebraska's new

Lincoln Girl 'Miss Nebraska'

The Lincoln entry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Van Horne of San Rafael, Calif., will represent the Cornhusker State in the Miss America Pageant in Atlantic City, N.J., in September.

Miss Nebraska and the four runners-up were selected late Saturday night after officials had to vote a second time because of a tie in the final positions.

Runners-up are: S. J. Johnson of Omaha, Miss Photogenic, first; Suzanne Gewacke, Miss York, second; Marjorie Ruth Eilers of Sterling, Miss Beatrice, third; and Judy Carol Thompson of Paxton, Miss North Platte, fourth.

Anita Rae Person, Miss Broken Bow, was voted Miss Congeniality.

Counties' Tax Values Up, Down

Net Valuations Up About 2%

The checkered pattern of some counties rolling back last year's property tax valuations on real estate and others increasing those values continues to show up in the state tax commissioner's office.

Among the seven most recent counties reporting 1966 tangible property valuation to the State Board of Equalization, five have hiked their actual values — Platte County, especially—while two others have authorized reductions.

They are Arthur and Blaine, which are both also refusing to use results of state-approved real estate reappraisals for the coming tax year.

Platte County reported a rise in valuation of $7,634,094; from $185,436,631 to $193,070,725. More than half of this gain is attributed to higher personal property values.

At the present time, 27 of Nebraska's 93 counties have filed their 1966 abstract of values with the State Board, which meets—by law — July 4. Deadline for remaining counties to submit their values is July 1.

On an aggregate basis, the net valuation gain of the 27 counties is $25.7 million, or somewhat less than 2% above 1965 values.

	1966	1965
Arthur	$ 12,819,618	$ 14,856,543
Blaine	16,871,651	17,689,976
Chase	51,656,561	50,916,657
Dixon	56,342,888	55,420,030
Greeley	34,982,982	31,107,415
Nuckolls	68,761,925	67,682,279
Platte	193,070,725	185,436,631
Totals	$434,506,350	$426,109,531

Wiegman Will Plan 'Food for Freedom'

By DON WALTON

Eugene Wiegman, administrative assistant to Rep. Clair Callan, will join the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture Monday to help plan and implement the new Food for Freedom program.

Wiegman

Wiegman, 36, will work primarily in the area of providing technical assistance for the farmer-to-farmer portion of the program.

His duties actually began this weekend when he met with four regional representatives of land grant universities in Chicago to plan technical assistance.

Callan, in Lincoln for a series of appointments, said John Hein will assume responsibilities which Wiegman held on the staff, and a successor may be named later.

Food for Freedom has not yet been formally enacted into law. It has received House approval; Senate passage is expected within the next two weeks.

Wiegman, a former member of the Democratic state executive committee and political science professor at Concordia College in Seward from 1961 to 1964, has been with Callan since Jan. 4, 1965.

'Rewarding'

"It has been an enjoyable and rewarding experience," Wiegman said. "Mr. Callan shows every prospect of being a great congressman."

Wiegman said his new federal assignment will involve working with land grant colleges and universities in recruiting and training practical farmers who will go to developing nations to assist their farmers in implementing better agricultural techniques.

It will, in effect, bring him back into the field of education, Wiegman noted, and require co-ordination with other agencies such as the Peace Corps and the Agency for International Development.

"Food for Freedom is a tremendous program with a great humanitarian goal," Wiegman said.

"It is probably one of the finest programs that will come out of this Congress, both in terms of helping the starving peoples of the world and in helping Nebraska agriculture."

Harvard Picnic

The annual Harvard-Lincoln potluck picnic will be held in Shepherd Hall at the Warren Methodist Church, 45th and Orchard, at 12:30 p.m. today. All residents and former residents of Harvard are invited.

Mrs. Hoffman and her daughter were killed in a two-car headon collision early Saturday on Highway 77 one-half mile north of Wahoo.

The husband and father, Larry Hoffman, 21, was listed in poor condition at a Lincoln hospital and so was the driver of the other car, Kenneth J. Weiman, 41, of Fremont.

In 1919, he received an award for devoted service and leadership in behalf of UJA and in 1952 was the recipient of the Lincoln Jewish Federation Honor Award.

'Railroad' Mural Being Installed In Capital Foyer

A Canadian artist and his assistant Saturday were installing a mural entitled "The Building of the Railroad" in the State Capitol's main foyer, the Hall of Fame.

The mural will join two others which are already in place, and three more will follow. The six works of art depict Nebraska's development.

Already installed are murals entitled "The Blizzard of '88" by Jeane Reynal of New York City and "Spirit of Nebraska" by Reinhold Marxhausen of Seward Concordia Teachers College, art professor.

To come later are murals entitled "U.S. Survey," "Tree Planting" and "Building the Capitol."

Flour Mills Silent, But Dams Still Produce 'Private' Power

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

DeWitt—The overshot water wheels are long gone, "Golden Bell" rye went with the depression, but the Big Blue still spins out the kilowatts.

Only at DeWitt and 18 winding miles upstream at Wilber, though, does private power hold out. The picturesque dams of John Zwonechek and Fred Aksamit—preceding generations had been partners — are the last of their kind in this public power state.

"Each of us can kick out 150 kilowatts or so an hour under ideal water conditions," said Zwonechek, who followed father Fred and grandfather John into the now-rare operation. Consumers Public Power District high-lines now take the output that originally served only the mills, then "a few neighbors," then the two towns.

There is no big money from the little hydros, though "this old running water is still the cheapest source of power." Zwonechek, 53, depends upon crop income to help maintain an attractive farmstead at the dam site. Aksamit puts in full time at the Wilber plant.

"It's just a living, but if I didn't get outdoors here every day, I'd soon be under with so many of my classmates," said the older man, 75. "I learned to be a miller to start with and have spent all my life at this old dam. I've seen all the floods, ice one inch thicker than a yardstick—and years and years of troubles."

Aksamit's father, Joe, had teamed with the first John Zwonechek to buy the Wilber mill soon after its construction in 1872. From their white flour success came expansion at DeWitt into "the only rye flour mill in Nebraska."

"The company had warehouses in Chicago, Des Moines, Cedar Rapids and Omaha until it went broke in the 1930's," recalled Zwonechek. "Believe it or not, we still get letters asking for 'Golden Bell' and 'Little Hatchet' rye."

Although a receivership took over the mills, the power partnership continued until after World War II. The turbo-generators had been installed about 1920.

Zwonechek's commercial water rights date back to 1875, incidentally, and are apparently the state's oldest that are still active. Records of the Division of Water Resources indicate that the two power plants are the last ones privately owned and operated.

Private power man Zwonechek even has his own private bridge, what with a new one being constructed just upriver. Rather than spend money to tear down the 1888 structure, the county deeded it to him for access to a field.

Chuckled the ex-footballer and wrestler, who had won all-conference honors both at Doane College and the University of Colorado:

"With the bridge, I get kidded more than ever about being a big power magnate. Besides the little dam, I now have a bridge that goes nowhere and an old mill that grinds no flour."

Guardsmen Come Home

Two-Week Tests End

Nebraska National Guardsmen were scheduled to return today after two weeks of extensive Army training tests at Camp Ripley, Minn.

For the first time, chaplains were to be airlifted to bivouac sites of the convoys for morning services.

About 80% of the Guard's 4,500 men belong to the 67th Infantry Brigade Mechanized, part of the November-born Select Reserve Force (SRF).

SRF troops are to be at full readiness by June 30. This meant moving the date of the summer camp from August to June in order to complete battalion-level Army training tests before that date.

The tests included a 72-hour attack and retrograde action for each battalion, following a scenario written and supervised by 150 officers and men.

Twelve pages of wholesome colored comics, feature stories with plenty of pictures and the big entertainment section are a few reasons why nearly everyone reads the "Sunday Journal and Star."

Kids Western Parade Winners Awarded Prizes

Western garb was donned by about 200 Lincoln youngsters for the NEBRASKAland Best Western-Dressed Kids Parade Saturday morning.

Judging was done in four divisions. Prizes for the top three individuals in each division were, respectively, a bicycle, a $25 savings bond, and a transistor radio.

Winners included: boys, 4-8, Kevin Patterson, Tom Taylor and Scott and Shari Shell; girls, 4-8, Linda Taylor, Terri Welch and Gale Ann Ramser; boys, 9-12, Dennis Hendry, Kevin Kraft and Kelly Shields; and girls, 9-12, Barbara Garrison, Sandy Veskrna and Cynthia Dowling.

The contest was sponsored by Lincoln Elks Lodge No. 80.

Arab Threat

Kuwait (AP) — Ford automobiles and other products will be banned from this oil-rich Arab sheikhdom if the Ford Motor Co. proceeds with a plan to build a factory in Israel to make cars and tractors, the Arab League "Boycott of Israel" office says.

School Boards Back 'Quality Standards'

Nebraska public school board members surveyed by their statewide organization are almost unanimous in the belief the state should impose minimum educational program quality standards as a basis for receiving state financial aid.

The response on this point to a spring questionnaire sent Nebraska State School Board Assn. (NSSBA) members was 312 for the minimum standards and three against.

Results of the NSSBA's wide-ranging survey were made public Saturday night by the organization's executive secretary, Richard C. Brown of Holdrege.

Brown cautioned the results represent the thinking of individual board members, and, in some cases, superintendents — not the considered policy of boards.

Striking Brown as significant was the "preponderance for state-required organization into consolidated school districts." The vote here was 312-88.

Nebraska schoolmen and lawmakers have consistently steered away from the concept of compulsory school district reorganization as a topic too hot for resolution, let alone serious public examination.

Board members answering the poll heavily favored (368-28) the state establishing minimum approval standards for public elementary-only school districts, granting the State Reorganization Committee power to veto local redistricting proposals (296-108), including Grades 7 and 8 in the legal definition of secondary classes (368-34) and expanding the non-resident tuition law to include Grades 7 and 8 (351-40).

Only nine of 403 persons answering the questionnaire oppose the idea of the "state contributing substantially to the support of local public schools."

The plurality put the state's financial share of educating a student between 30 and 50%. Current state aid figures out at about 4% of an average school district's revenue — the lowest amount any state gives its public schools.

When it came to how the Legislature should raise money for state aid to schools, 231 lined up beside a combination sales-income tax.

There were 91 more for just a sales tax, 85 for an income tax standing alone and 17 favor the money coming from an increased state property tax.

Two hundred fifty-five persons said the state aid should be distributed on the basis of either daily attendance or membership in the public schools, while 66 others marked down the census method.

This gives a school in a town with heavily parochial school enrolment an extra benefit — and indirectly lessens the local tax burden on all residents of that district.

Brown said 263 board members reported the current $3 per day non-resident tuition rate is not compensatory, while 107 others said it covered their districts' actual per pupil cost.

Last week Robert Romans of Arnold sued the Arnold Board of Education because it continued to take non-resident high school students at the $3 per day tuition rate, when this sum failed to cover actual costs.

Romans Saturday said his aim in the suit is to "equalize tax burdens."

The Arnold man said he does not believe city residents should subsidize high school education of rural students through increased city school taxes, nor should city school districts make money off rural taxpayers, if the $3 per day rate is more than is necessary.

Sen. Curtis: aeronautical and space sciences; finances; government operations; rules and administration; joint atomic energy.

Sen. Hruska: appropriations; judiciary.

Congressman Cunningham: interstate and foreign commerce; post office and Civil Service.

Congressman Martin: education and labor; rules.

Open House Is Last Tribute to Weaver Mansion

Falls City — Open house from noon to 8 p.m. today will mark the final tribute to Falls City's historic Weaver House, doomed, shortly, to be razed to make way for a new-used car lot.

The century-old red brick house, once the home of Nebraska Gov. Arthur Weaver, was sold, following action by the estate partition court, to local auto dealer, Ken E. Morehead.

Morehead's offer to donate the home and help financially in its move was rejected as "utterly impossible" by Mrs. Doris Weaver Glenn, head of the fight to preserve the house as an historic landmark.

Participating in the public open house today are women of the Falls City Methodist Church, dressed in earlyday gowns and serving punch to visitors in the dining room.

Democrats Are Polled

Questioned On Issues

Leaders of Nebraska's Democratic party are being polled by State Chairman John Mitchell of Kearney on what they see as the big issues and problems facing major Democratic candidates this year.

Mitchell dispatched a seven-question form Thursday to all state central committeemen, the executive committee, county officers and members of the Century Club.

Mitchell is asking all recipients to "jot down what you are hearing."

The first three questions ask "what issues do you feel are important or will be important" in races for U.S. Senate, Congress and the governor's office.

Next are a pair of queries on "what special problems do you believe face Gov. Morrison in his race for the U.S. Senate . . . and Philip Sorensen in his race for governor?"

After putting a general question about special problems ahead of the three congressional candidates, Mitchell wants to know if the Democratic chieftains "have any specific suggestions that will be helpful in campaigning as to what the party of the candidate ought to be doing?"

Results of the survey are not expected to be made public.

Miller Resigns Post With RI

U. of N. Will Seek 70% Boost in Funds

University of Nebraska officials said Saturday they will urge the 1967 Legislature to increase the state tax fund appropriation to the University from $34.4 million to $60 million, a 70% increase.

Chancellor Clifford Hardin and other NU officials stressed that $60 million in state funds will be the absolute minimum need of the institution during the next two years, with new programs increasing the needs.

Board of Regents President Clarence E. Swanson of Lincoln said the board has agreed to recommend a general fund appropriation of not less than $60,042,000 for the biennium beginning July 1, 1967.

Vice Chancellor Joseph Soshnik, who is conducting budget review sessions with department heads, said the departmental recommendations would require "substantially more" than a $60 million general fund appropriation.

The University, which requested more than $42 million in general fund money for the current biennium, was allocated $34.4 million by the 1965 Legislature. A tuition increase and other additional University - generated revenues left NU about $4.5 million short of its request.

The 1967 Legislature will be asked to approve a supplemental appropriation of at least $570,000 to solve a fiscal pinch due to an unexpectedly large increase in enrollment.

The number of students has increased from 8,400 in 1959 to 15,179 last year. The administration said enrollment is expected to reach 17,200 by next fall and 25,000 by 1971.

"The students' burden for financing education is already pretty high," Swanson said. "Limiting enrollment would only shift the problem to other colleges in the state."

Omaha in Rent Aid Program

Assn. of Blind Is Sponsor

Washington (AP) — President Johnson announced Saturday the assignment of the first funds under the controversial rent subsidy program—$663,470 to provide 1,095 units of what he termed "modest but decent housing" in a dozen localities, including Omaha, Neb.

The initial projects in the program approved by Congress last year are in Boston, Cleveland, Greenville, Miss., New Orleans, New York, Pasco, Wash., Philadelphia, Providence, R. I., Saginaw, Mich., San Antonio, Tex., and the Watts area of Los Angeles in addition to Omaha.

Congress last month voted supplemental funds to get the program started.

Robert C. Weaver, secretary of housing and urban development, said tenants eligible for rent supplements must have incomes within the range of public housing requirements for the locality.

Omaha Sponsor Gets $24,000

Omaha (AP) — The sponsor of the Omaha project in the controversial rent subsidy program is the non profit Association of the Blind, Inc.

Involved are 40 units at Walter B. Roberts manor. The rent supplement is $24,000 and the mortgage amount is $400,000.

The low - income family pays one-fourth of its income in rent. The difference between that payment and the fair rental for the property is made up by federal payments to the housing owners.

He said the final authorization to proceed with the contract for the construction of the four-story residence for the blind should be forthcoming in about two weeks.

The federal funds will be used to subsidize the rent of the occupants of the 40-unit building when it is completed at 32nd Ave. and Pacific St.

The home housing and finance agency has approved a $400,000 loan for the project. Swager said the Omaha National Bank will be the lender.

The Wisner fire department was called, but the plane was burned to the frame before it arrived.

Gas Main Replaced

Completion In Mid-July

The replacement of a 1905 gas main in 10th St., O to G, is now underway and should be completed by mid-July, according to a spokesman for the Western Power and Gas Co.

The project, costing some $8,800, has been cleared by the different city departments and is part of the company's yearly maintenance program.

Gas company officials said that the replacement of the gas main between M and G will not include as much work within 10th St., an arterial.

"We are working our crew a full shift on this project and also don't like to tear up a major arterial but this work has to be done," a gas company spokesman said.

City officials said the gas company followed the necessary procedures to do the project and the handling of traffic in the construction areas was authorized by the city traffic engineering department.

Financing Explored

Financing Explored

Council members agreed to this on the basis that all other avenues of financing the sum would be explored, including a special emergency appropriation by the 1967 Legislature.

If it ultimately must come from the federal hospital-health construction funds, it will mean $80,000 less for some future hospital project, Pangborn told the Council Friday.

The additional $80,000 is needed to pipe in heat and air conditioning from the University's East Campus plant to the new $650,000 building. This eliminates installation of that equipment in the laboratory and need of maintenance employes.

Morrison's Remarks On Wage Policy Hit

to wage gains made through signing of new labor union pacts in Omaha and Lincoln.

Last week Omaha city employes asked for a 20% pay boost in the coming fiscal year. A 5% average salary hike granted the Lincoln Board of Education to Capital City teachers has been greeted with unprecedented public dissatisfaction.

State Institutions Director George Morris observed "in Norfolk, we are the labor pool."

Morris referred to the Norfolk State Hospital staff, where beginning ward aide salaries are $200 per month. "This summer, we're trying to hold the place together with junior college students," the director asserted.

Can't Compete

Morris asked how state government could compete for labor in the Norfolk region with a starting pay scale of approximately $1.10 per hour.

High employe turnover also has been put on the record at Lincoln State Hospital.

State Republican Chairman Walter Witthoff of Fremont said Morrison is "six years late" in telling agency heads to trim back or end programs which cannot be defended in terms of current use and not to propose new programs, unless they are necessary.

Witthoff said Morrison "is trying to suddenly portray himself as a fiscal conservative" to win votes in his senatorial clash with Republican Carl T. Curtis.

Two Budgets

Whomever is elected governor in November—Democrat Philip C. Sorensen or Republican Norbert T. Tiemann—will submit his own budget to the 1967 Legislature. But the Constitution requires Morrison to present a package, too.

Sorensen, it was learned, was not involved in establishment of the 3.5% index made by fellow Democrat Morrison. Tiemann is known to believe the Morrison guideline has political implications.

Norfolk is not the only spot where the labor supply is very tight.

This has resulted, he acknowledged, "in some increase in the wage structure."

Where 1,000 persons have been hired at the reactivated Cornhusker Ordnance Plant, another 1,000 are programmed to be on the payroll by fall, Good said.

Commuters

Likewise, the New Holland Co. plans to expand its work force from the current 80 to around 450 over the summer.

Good said many workers are commuting from smaller towns into Grand Island. Interstate Highway 80 is proving a particularly vital traffic artery.

The University of Nebraska's Bureau of Business Research last month published findings that retail food prices in Grand Island this year are running an average of 5.6% above those of one year ago.

The offering of higher wages is not universal in Nebraska, Eitel concluded.

"There are still some pockets where people are trying to recruit workers for 65 and 70 cents an hour," Eitel noted. "Then they wonder why they keep losing population."

Decisions Not Told

The Democratic State Central Committee, meeting in Lincoln, "came to some decisions" about financial support for candidates in this year's general election campaigning.

But party chairman John Mitchell of Kearney said the committee has instructed him not to disclose the substance of those decisions, what amounts of money are to be allocated to what candidates or even the total pool of dollars the Democrats presently have.

Mitchell did comment that some decisions about financing yet remain to be made.

Still pending, too, is the appointment of various committees for the party's Sept. 18 convention at Lincoln's Pershing Auditorium.

One of the matters remaining up in the air is whether a platform committee will hold public hearings, at which individuals or organizations can testify for or against policy positions.

A more used alternative in Nebraska is to have the committee privately draft platform resolutions for the entire convention's contemplation and action.

New Toll Bridge Eyed

Aid Northeast Traffic Woes

By United Press International

State Highway Engineer John Hossack said Saturday a toll bridge over the Missouri River in northeast Nebraska appears the best answer to growing traffic congestion problems in the area.

He said Nebraska and Iowa should strive to hammer out a bridge compact for joint financing of the structure.

"This would appear to be the best and most feasible approach to the traffic problem," Hossack said.

"Both states agree there is a definite need for another bridge in the area but the problem has been how to finance it."

The Nebraska and Iowa Highway Commissions will meet in Lincoln June 27 to discuss the proposal and other alternatives, Hossack said. The conference wil be closed to news media but statements may be issued afterwards.

TV Service Course Planned

A service management seminar for TV and appliance service organizations has been scheduled for June 22 and 26 and July 6 and 13 in the Public Schools Administration Building auditorium, with Mrs. Hazel L. Smith moderating.

Sponsored by the Nebraska Electronics Service Assn., Lincoln Public Schools' Adult Education Division, Nebraska Distributive Education and the Small Business Administration, the seminar's four sessions will deal with personnel, merchandising, records analysis and controls.

Each session will run from 7 to 9:30 p.m.

Late Notices of Tax Decisions Worrisome

By HAROLD SIMMONS

For the first time in several years taxpayers did not receive notice of county board of equalization decisions on requests to lower property valuations until more than two weeks after the decisions were made.

Several attorneys representing businesses and individuals complained about not receiving notice within two or three days as they have in the past.

Their reason for complaining was not only eagerness to learn the board's decision, but also to find out in time to file a notice of appeal from the decision if they wanted to.

State law says appeals from board decisions must be made within 45 days of adjournment of the board—and in the same manner as appeals taken from action by the board on allowance or disallowance of claims against the county.

And the law governing action on claims says a notice of appeal must be filed in writing with the county clerk within 20 days after the board's decision.

This put the deadline for filing notice of appeal at June 19. When notices had not been mailed by June 12 several attorneys became worried enough to start complaining.

Double Session

The county commissioners found themselves in the unique position last week of holding two meetings at the same time.

The regular board meeting of June 7 was recessed and not adjourned because there was some unfinished business. During the June 14 meeting it was brought to the commissioners' attention that they had not adjourned the June 7 meeting.

Courthouse Call

So about 45 minutes into the meeting last Tuesday they held off that day's business for a few minutes, completed the unfinished business from the previous week, adjourned the June 7 meeting, and continued the June 14 meeting.

Legal Light Needed

The city engineer has notified the county it is in Ornamental Light Dist. 69, formed in 1963 to install street lights that include those along the Courthouse, and wondered if the county would like to pay its share of the cost.

The county's share would be $2,749.47. The city cannot assess the county for the money, however, since it is a "higher" government authority.

One suggested solution was for the county to pay the money and then add it to the price the city will pay for the block the courthouse occupies since the city will buy that block for its portion of the new city-county building.

The engineer's notice was finally forwarded to the county attorney, however, for his study and recommendation.

Elks, Jaycees Sponsor 3rd Safety Check Here

Lincoln Elks are joining the Lincoln Junior Chamber of Commerce and Havelock Business Men's Assn. in sponsoring the city's third annual vehicle safety check next Sunday.

SAFETY CHECKED

To the car owner, Jay-Cee Chairman Rob Lubben directs these national facts:

—About two out of every three vehicles registered and operating on streets and highways are not officially inspected to determine their safe driving condition.

—Only 20 states require periodic motor vehicle inspection by law. Nebraska is not one of the 20.

—Of the 3.5 million cars inspected in 3,600 vehicle safety check programs in the nation last year, more than half a million needed attention to at least one of the items checked.

"No one knows how many traffic accidents are caused by vehicles in unsafe condition, but even the best driver may not be able to avoid an accident if his car is not in safe condition," Lubben said.

With his staff, Lubben estimates the free checks will take no more than five to 10 minutes per car.

Points to be checked will be brakes, front and rear lights, turn signals, steering, tires, exhaust system, glass, horn, windshield wipers, rear-view mirror and seat belts.

A safety checked seal will be given to all cars passing the tests.

The safety check stations maintained from noon to 5 p.m. next Sunday will be:

So. 16th, east of the Capitol.
42nd and Randolph
17th and E
40th and Vine
Cotner and Holdrege
48th and Bancroft
60th and Havelock

Shopping Center Zone Hearing Is Wednesday

Requests to rezone two large tracts of suburban land in order to develop multimillion dollar shopping centers will be heard by the City-County Planning Commission at 3:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Planning Director Douglas Brogden has recommended denial of the following:

The application of Larry Price for a change of zone from A-2 single family dwelling to G local business on 54.6 acres between 48th and 56th near Van Dorn.

Price proposes to develop a retail shopping center on the property and possibly a group of apartment buildings. He has estimated the project to cost $10 million.

The applications of Newt Copple, H. H. Weiner, L. A. Dillman and others for a change of zone from A-2 single family to G local business on 34 acres in the vicinity of 52nd and R. There is also a request to change zoning on 4½ acres in the northwest corner of the property from A-2 single family to E multiple dwelling.

The 52nd and R applications have been heard by the commission but no recommendation was made pending the analysis of traffic impact on areas surrounding both proposed developments, and an additional study on possible residential development of the 52nd St. land package.

Brogden said data estimating the impact of traffic at 48th and Van Dorn and the No. 48th to 52nd area that would be caused by the successful development of the shopping centers will be ready for the commission by Wednesday.

Alternate land use schemes proposing residential development on a community unit plan basis for the 52nd and R property will also be presented to the commission.

Opposes Both

Brogden opposes both change of zone requests because they "represent a significant change in the future land use pattern" of the city.

"Should the community change its basic planning goal that the central business district be the dominant retail shopping area, such proposals should be accomplished in a different manner," Brogden said in his report to the commission.

He suggested that the entire community should be studied and alternate locations chosen so that a better distribution for shopping facilities can be obtained in relation to the shopping public and the major street system.

Brogden said approval of shopping centers of the size proposed "will substantially detract from the possibilities of continued success of our business district."

He further opposes the Price application because, he says, it is not in conformance with the Comprehensive Plan, approval would not encourage the stabilization of land values in the College View area, and it would create substantial traffic problems along 48th and 56th.

'At Capacity'

Similar objections were issued by Brogden for the 52nd and R proposal. He noted at the original hearing that the intersections of 48th and O and 48th and Vine "are at their capacity or exceeding their capacity. Even a partially successful business enterprise of this size would overload these traffic facilities," he added.

The commission hearing will be held in the council chamber at City Hall. Recommendations on all business before the commission are forwarded to the City Council for final action.

Other pending actions:

—Change of zone from A-2 single family dwelling to local business on property located on the east side of 48th, south of Hillside St., requested by Russell O. Mohr, George Preece and Gertrude Smith.

—Request by Mohr and Preece for a special permit to construct and operate a parking lot east of 48th, north of Calvert.

—Final plat, Westgate 2nd addition, in the vicinity of West A and 10 blocks west of 1st.

—Request of Dot Inc., and King Dollar Inc., for special permits to construct and operate parking lots on No. 26th, south of W.

6,000 Porcelain Balls Have Major Role in Paint Plant

By BESS JENKINS

Six thousand porcelain balls go round and round in a 200-gallon container throughout the night in the 305 M St. building.

The container, also porcelain-lined, is called a closed ball paint mill.

In it, the golfball-sized globes bat each other back and forth and up and down during the 48-hour period it takes to get their job done.

The job is grinding up and blending as many as 10 pigments, oils and thinners into a finished 200-gallon batch of enamel.

Near Capacity

The plant today has practically reached its paint production capacity of 728,000 gallons a year under its comparatively new owners, Roy A. Tramel and Leo Morris.

The combination of Tramel as the business expert and Morris as the technical wizard when they bought the 1907-established factory in 1959 was not new. They had worked together for a major paint manufacturer in Kansas City.

In 18 States

New equipment such as an $8,000 paint blender used for flat paint manufacturing and expansion of the sales territory from two states to 18 are some of the pair's accomplishments here.

In February, Tramel says, the company produced and sold more paint in the 28 days than in their entire first year after the 1959 buy.

Tramel and Morris are considering a new building site. Plans show a plant twice as large as the 14,000 square feet in their present tall brick structure.

The dozen workers on today's payroll often work six or seven days a week to meet orders.

The paint made from scratch in Lincoln and bearing the Van Sickle label is going as far away as California today.

Miniature closed ball paint mill . . . two-gallon version used for testing.

Uniform Fuel Audits In Five States Possible

The possibility of a five-state agreement involving uniform audits of state motor fuel taxpayers will be discussed Monday and Tuesday in Sioux Falls, S.D., upon the initiative of Nebraska officials.

State Tax Commissioner George Dworak said state revenue authorities from Minnesota, South and North Dakota and Iowa will meet with members of his staff.

"This is an exploratory meeting to see if the audit work performed by one state might not be acceptable and legal in another, so we all can use manpower more efficiently and save state funds," Dworak asserted.

A 1965 law grants the tax commissioner authority to shape working agreements consistent with Nebraska laws "with any federal office, state agency or local subdivision of state government, either within or without the state of Nebraska, which he may find necessary or desirable for proper administration of the tax laws of this state."

The motor fuel user laws of Nebraska, Iowa and South Dakota are very much alike, Dworak noted. This situation makes exchange of audit information more possible.

It would save the state money to send auditors to other states, reviewing, for example, the internal books and records of large trucking companies.

Moreover, said William Peters, the tax commissioner's legal assistant, this co-operative pact would answer a frequent federal complaint about the multiplicity of state regulations making a national remedial law necessary.

'Relations Improving'

A new era of cooperation between federal and state governments may be approaching, Lt. Gov. Philip C. Sorensen said Saturday.

He said the federal government "now apparently wishes to respond more to the wishes of state governments, particularly the legislatures, in creating and administering grant-in-aid programs."

Sorensen commented on his return from a national two-day conference on federal-state cooperation in Washington, D.C., which he and Red Cloud Sen. Kenneth Bowen attended as representatives of the Nebraska Legislature.

Sorensen said the major complaint of representatives at the conference was that the wishes of states were being ignored in many of the federal grant programs.

Sorensen said he agrees that the federal government has not always consulted with the states on the needs for various programs or on the establishment of program standards.

$110,000 TO $250,000
These are sales figures we are proud of. Why? Because every part of our operation is pre-planned, pre-tested, and proved under actual conditions. Millions of car owners need a transmission specialist — and that's why by using the AAMCO system and method the average of all AAMCO shops is an annual gross of over $110,000 — why the better ones gross a quarter million dollars. That's why AAMCO shop owners are making fantastic personal incomes.
That's why we're opening as many as 20 new shops a month — in state after state across the nation. You see, AAMCO is the world's largest transmission specialists, over 200 shops coast-to-coast! We have found THE success formula that works. We take men like yourself, with absolutely no automotive experience, and equip them to show net profit from the first week of operation.
It's not easy to get an AAMCO franchise. We're very selective. You must have a desire to earn money — big money. You must have drive, ambition and a good business head. You must be willing to invest $12,500 to $20,000 depending on the size and location of your franchise. And you must prove to us that you're the kind of man who WILL succeed.
We have a few limited franchise availabilities! If you think you're capable of going all the way with AAMCO; if you're ready to move into the big money class, call or write.

Palmer's Birdie Barrage Keeps Lead in U.S. Golf Open

San Francisco (AP)—Arnold Palmer uncorked one of his dramatic birdie finishes for a three-stroke lead over Bill Casper but felt the hot breath of a Jack Nicklaus Saturday in the third round of the 66th National Open Golf Championship.

Palmer, with his powerful game showing signs of cracking with the loss of three strokes on the 12th and 13th holes, knocked in a 30-foot putt on the 16th hole and slammed home with an even par 70 for 207.

Casper, who won the Open in 1959, fell four strokes back at one stage, cut the margin to one and then slumped again for a 73 and 213.

Nicklaus, still fuming over a slow play feud with PGA officials, snapped back with his first sub-par round—a 69—and went into third place at 211, four back.

So it was Palmer, Casper and Nicklaus, three of golf's top performers, going into Sunday's climactic round over the tight, tree-framed Olympic lakeside course.

The others were relatively far back after a day of wrangling with the par 70, 372 acre course in almost perfect weather-sunny, temperatures in the 70s and negligible wind.

Ben Hogan, seeking his fifth Open crown over a course where he lost a bid 11 years ago in a playoff with Jack Fleck, tired visibly in the heat, shooting a 76 for 221.

Palmer, booming the ball down the middle of the hourglass fairways in what he said was his best driving exhibition in years, jumped into the lead quickly with a 15-foot birdie putt on the first hole.

He added another bird with a 35-footer at the fifth and moved four strokes ahead of Casper, his playing partner who was struggling with errant irons.

But at the short eigth Arnie drove into a trap and missed from 12 feet after his blast-out for a bogey 4.

At the 12th, he drove into the rough, bounced a ball off a tree, hit his third into a bunker and took three to get down for a double bogey 6. He missed another drive at the 14th, bogeying, and got a bit edgy.

"I thought my driving might have become unhinged at this point," Palmer said. "I have been driving so superbly in this tournament that I was afraid I might lose it."

However, the millionaire from Latrobe, Pa., hit another tremendous drive on the 14th and got a birdie from eight feet. At the 604-yard 16th he pitched the ball to the green and rolled in a birdie from 30 feet. Most of the pressure was off.

However, Palmer pushed his tee shot into the right rough on No. 17 and banged his second across the fairway into the left rough. But he pitched to the green and saved his par with a difficult 14-foot putt.

"I felt I lost my timing," he said. "I developed a slice."

Casper said he had a very exciting round. "It seems I was in the rough all day," he said. "I was in the rough seven times and three times landed in traps."

Casper bogeyed the short third when he drove into the crowd back of the green and lost another stroke at the fourth where he missed his drive and approached short.

He collected his first and only birdie at the 10th, where he sank a 13-foot putt, but bogeyed the 11th and 17th. At the 17th, he hit into the heavy fringe, chipped out to within 15 feet and missed the putt.

Casper, in the last two years, has reduced from 210 to 165 pounds through an unusual diet but recently put on a few extra pounds to get back up to 180.

Nicklaus, fighting the fat man symbol although he is a fairly solid 210-pounder, started with a birdie at the first hole and got only two other birds on the round. At the 16th, he sank a 25-footer. He had bogeys at the fifth where he hit one of the 34,000 trees, and at the ninth, where he three-putted from 40 feet.

"I played quite well except for those two bogeys," Nicklaus said. "No, none of the fairway cops bothered me."

Scott Wins NCAA 880

Huskers Finish Fourth

Bloomington, Ind. — (AP) Peter Scott, Nebraska's 880 man who finished third in the Big Eight championships, won the half mile at the NCAA Track and Field Championships here Saturday afternoon.

Scott turned on down the final turn and into the stretch to win by three or four yards with a time of 1:47.9.

It was no surprise to coach Frank Sevigne.

"I think he's going to win," Sevigne said two weeks ago when the Huskers left for three-week stand of national track meets. "He's looked great the last three weeks. The experts thought Frank had to be kidding.

Pete didn't.

The Huskers took fourth in the meet with 30 points behind UCLA and Brigham Young as Dave Crook finished second in the 440-yard dash Saturday after Charlie Greene won the 100 Friday when he tied the NCAA record of :09.3 and beat San Jose State's heralded Tommie Smith. Lynn Headley finished fifth in the 100.

Crook ran a :46.4 and finished just a tenth of a second behind winner Dave Middleton of the University of Southern California.

He had been sick all week and doctors said Thursday that Crook shouldn't run. But they gave him the ok Friday when he qualified.

Greene, Crook and Scott will now go to the national AAU meet in New York City. Headley will go to Puerto Rico to compete for Jamaica and hurdler Dave Kudron, who didn't place in the high hurdles, will return home.

Big Randy Matson of Texas A&M and tiny Gerry Lindgren of Washington State were double winners in record-smashing fashion.

Matson, world champion shotputter, shattered the NCAA discus record with a 197-0 toss. Lindgren romped to a meet 3-mile record of 13:33.7 in the final program in which UCLA set a 440 relay record.

In Thursday's opening event, Lindgren won the 6-mile handily but failed in a record try.

In all, four NCAA records were established and one tied. A whopping total of 10 individual champions were dethroned.

A meet fizzle was Smith, who was scratched from his 220 specialty after pulling up lame running anchor in the 440 relay.

UCLA, producing new champions in high hurdler Ron Copeland, 220 winner Tom Jones and the 440 and mile relay events, amassed a

Ohio State Wins College Series

By HAL BROWN

Ohio State jumped on Cowboy pitcher Frank Warrington a surprise starter, for two runs in the first inning before Oklahoma State coach Chet Bryan brought in Larry Burchart from the bullpen.

An error by Burchart gave the Buckeyes their third run of the inning with the run being charged to Warrington.

With two starters, John Pierce and Richard Frank available Bryan pulled a surprise move in starting Warrington.

Warrington was making his first start of the season for the Big Eight champions and had pitched only 18 innings prior to the College World Series.

Warrington pitched three and two thirds innings of relief and gained credit for the 6-1 win against St. John's Thursday night, a victory that put the Cowboys into the championship contest against second-ranked Ohio State.

After Warrington had retired the first batter, Ray shoup, on a fly ball to center field, Rickey Copp singled and moved to third on a double by Bo Reim.

Burchart retired Bob Baker on a grounder back to the mound, holding Nagelson at third. But then Burchart threw low to first on a ground ball by Roger Sexton and Nagelson scored.

Ohio State added another run in the third with Nagelson tripling Copp home from first after a single.

Two more runs crossed the plate in the sixth inning with Baker safe on an error by second baseman Tracy Feeny and scoring on a single by Bruce Heine.

Sexton, who had been safe on a fielder's choice, scored on the front end of an attempted double steal with Heine being thrown out at second.

Oklahoma State couldn't score until after the Buckeyes had taken a 6-0 lead. Ron McCord homered over the left field fence in the seventh inning and the Cowboys scored again in the eighth when Bob Toney doubled to chase Bill Spyres home.

Leading 8-2 going into the top of the ninth, Ohio State coach Marty Karow called on All-American hurler Steve Arlin to pitch the final inning. Arlin, making his fifth appearance in six games here, retired the side in order to wrap up the Buckeye's first College World Series crown.

Ohio State starter Dick Boggs retired the first 13 batters to face him before giving up a single to Wayne Weatherly in the fifth inning. After giving up a leadoff single to Spyres in the eighth, Karow brought in Mike Swain to retire the side. Arlin then pitched the ninth.

Saturday night's crowd of 10,057 pushed the attendance for the seres to 63,376, more than 3,000 over the old record set in 1964.

Robinsons' Power Bats Lift Orioles Once Again

By Associated Press

Frank and Brooks Robinson were at it again Saturday, leading a five-homer Baltimore barrage that buried Boston, 16-6.

Each of the Robinsons hit a homer as the American League leading Orioles posted their 11th triumph in the last 13 games. Frank's two-run shot in the first inning gave him a total of 18, while Brooks' three-run blast in the fourth brought his total to 12.

Also homering for Baltimore were Curt Blefary, Dave Johnson and Boog Powell, who had four hits altogether.

The next two teams in the AL also won, second-place Cleveland whipping Washington 7-2 and third - place Detroit edging New York, 4-3.

All of Cleveland's runs came on homers, Leon Wagner, Pedro Gonzalez and Fred Whitfield each connecting with one on and Buddy Booker belting a solo homer. The attack gave Sonny Siebert his seventh victory against three defeats.

Bill Freehan's second run-scoring single of the game, in the eighth inning, boosted Detroit past New York. The single drove in Willie Horton, who was on base with his third hit of the game.

Minnesota edged the Chicago White Sox, 9-8, as Jimmie Hall hit two homers and drove in five runs. The White Sox rallied for three runs in the ninth, two on Jerry Adair's single, but Al Worthington came on and got the Twins out of trouble.

Houston rode a 17-hit attack to a 13-5 victory over the Chicago Cubs. The Astros got started in the second inning when Rusty Staub homered with none on and John Bateman connected with two aboard.

Cincinnati rallied for three runs in the eighth inning and a 5-4 decision over the New York Mets. Deron Johnson tied the game, 3-3, with a homer, and the Reds won it on bases loaded walks to Tommy Harper and Pete Rose.

Lou Brock celebrated his 27th birthday with a tie-breaking homer in the eighth inning that powered the St. Louis Cardinals' to a 3-2 victory over Philadelphia.

Sandy Koufax pitched a four-hitter for his 12th victory of the season as the Los Angeles Dodgers snapped San Francisco's six-game winning streak, 3-2, Saturday night.

Tommy Davis broke a 1-1 tie with a sixth-inning single and Jim Lefebvre clouted a homer in the seventh, helping Koufax, 12-2, beat the National League leaders for the third straight time this year.

Pittsburgh's Don Clendenon broke a two-run homer in the sixth inning and Pittsburgh added six insurance runs in the seventh inning, whipping Atlanta 9-6 Saturday night.

The Braves tried to battle back in the eighth when Hank Aaron slapped a two-run homer, his 22nd of the year, and Felipe Alou followed with his second home run of the night and his sixth in the last four games.

Bobby Knoop's three-run double in the fourth inning and a two-run homer by Willie Smith in the seventh, carried the California Angels to their seventh straight victory, 7-3, over Kansas City.

Knoop's double broke a scoreless deadlock after the Angels had loaded the bases on singles by Jim Fregosi and Norm Siebern and a hit batter.

Smith led the seventh inning uprising with his homer after Jose Cardenal drove in the first run with a sacrifice fly. Jim Piersall's squeeze bunt brought in the final run in the eighth inning.

Nicklaus Plays Own Golf Game

San Francisco (AP) — The feud's over between big Jack Nicklaus and the U.S. Golf Association.

"No, no trouble. No harassment," Nicklaus said Saturday after a one-under par 6 for a 211 and third position after three rounds of the U.S. Open Golf Tournament.

"No one bothered us at all. "In fact, they told me it wasn't me they were concerned about Friday."

Nicklaus was boiling mad Friday and promptly made four bogeys in a row-after a USGA official ordered his threesome to speed up play. He was playing, at that time, with Tony Lema and Bruce Devlin.

He strongly criticized the USGA for its speed-up policy and accused the group of "ruining my tempo with their speed-up policeman hanging around my neck."

He played the third round Saturday with John Miller, 19 - year - old San Francisco amateur. Their round took about 4 hours and 25 minutes.

"That's about what we play the British Open in," Nicklaus said. "And it's about what we play the Masters in, about 3:20, maybe 3:30.

"No one said a word to us. We just played our game. Sure, we walked fast, but we always walk fast. But we took our time on our shots."

Playing with Nicklaus and before the huge gallery of the tournament didn't shake the poise of the collegian Miller in the biggest event of his life.

"I really enjoyed playing with him," said Johnny of his 18 holes with the Masters' champion. "It didn't bother me at all. You learn a lot playing with a guy like that.

"I didn't even notice the crowd most of the time. Once a noise behind us bothered me, but it was my own fault. I should have been concentrating more."

"I was never at ease with my game," Miller admitted, "but that was because it seemed every time I really wanted to hit a green, I missed it.

Nicklaus termed the 165-pound collegian, "quite impressive . . . a very good young golfer. He's going to fill out a bit, put some meat on his bones and hit farther. I played two practice rounds with him, and he wasn't hitting nearly as well then as today."

Miller registered to caddy in the Open before he qualified to play in it. Still he termed himself confident of doing well.

"I know this course real well," he said. "I think I've played hundreds of rounds here. But the greens never have been this fast, and that bothers me. I have to think about it every time I line up a putt."

Omaha—The next time you hear someone say, "He's not too bad for a little guy," we'll bet the fellow saying it is a big guy.

The successful little guys of the world generally aren't thinking in terms of whether they are doing all right for being a little guy and Gene Duffy, who is in charge of the College World Series here as director of events for the National Collegiate Athletic Association, is a prime example.

"I never was big, so I don't know if my size has ever been a handicap or not," says the 5-6 Duffy, who captained both the baseball and basketball teams during his senior year at Notre Dame.

Maybe in Baseball

Strangely, Duffy points out that if his lack of size was a hinderance in any area, it was in baseball, not basketball where seven-foot goons are the rule not the exception.

"Maybe my shortness was a hinderance at times in baseball because I was an outfielder," he recalled during a lull in th College World Series action. "If I had been an infielder, I don't think there would have been any trouble at all.

"But since I was left-handed, about the only place I could play was the outfield." Duffy played part of his baseball career in the Sherman Field outfield as centerfielder for the Lincoln Chiefs in the Three-I League.

Basketball No Problem

"Basketball was never a problem," Duffy continues, "because I always could dribble and pass pretty good and Notre Dame at the time I was there had a good scorer, so what they needed was someone to get the ball to him and I was it."

Duffy got his chance with Notre Dame on the basketball court in a contest that was nearly a disaster on the South Bend campus.

"I wasn't a starter early in my sophomore year there, the former Creighton business manager recalls. "But one night, we were ahead of Michigan State by about 25 points and they went into a full court press.

"With that press, they had nearly caught us when our coach looked down the bench and told me to go in. After that I was a starter."

Tackling New Job

Duffy now is tackling a new task as director of events with the NCAA, having joined the collegiate organization less than two months ago.

"I think it's a real challenge and very interesting," he says in discussing his new job. "I have enjoyed it so far and have learned more in the last two months about college athletics than I had learned in four previous years."

His fellow workers also are happy with Duffy. "He has picked up things real fast," said David Price, a member of the NCAA staff in Kansas City who is with Duffy in Omaha for the College World Series.

Remembers Ramseys

What does he remember best about his year of minor league baseball at Lincoln?

"Ray and Florence Ramsey," he quickly answers. "I lived in their home that summer and they were always as good as they could be to me."

Duffy has gone from Class B baseball to a top-ranking job with the NCAA. Not bad for a little guy.

Fords Running 1-2 In Le Mans

Le Mans, France (AP)—A seven-liter Ford driven by Ken Miles of Hollywood, Calif., and Denis Hulme of New Zealand charged into the lead early Sunday after eight hours of the Le Mans 24-hour racing classic.

Another Ford, with Dan Gurney of Costa Mesa, Calif., and Jerry Grant of Santa Ana, Calif., also overtook two Ferraris that had battled for the early lead and moved into second position.

The Ferrari stable, dueling Ford for world driving supremacy in the gruelling endurance race, lost six of its 14-car contingent but still had four in the top 10 at the one-third mark.

A Texas-built Chaparral, driven by Joakim Bonnier of Sweden and Phil Hill of Santa Monica, Calif., was another early casualty, dropping out in the eighth hour with a dead battery. The car, owned by Jim Hall and Hap Sharp of Midland, Tex., had crept up from 18th to 12th place.

The Fords passed the early pacesetter, a Ferrari P-3 driven by Pedro Rodriguez of Mexico and Richie Ginther of Granda Hills, Calif., as the cars slowed down because of intermittent showers that began shortly before midnight.

Fords were running 1-2-4-8-9-10 while Ferraris held the 3-5-6-7 spots.

Turks Capture Wrestling Title; Yanks Third

Toledo, Ohio (AP) — Turkey won the team freestyle title Saturday night in the 1966 World Wrestling Championships as the United States once again failed to win a gold medal.

Russia, with three gold medal winners, finished second, and the United States finished third. Iran and Bulgaria tied for fourth.

Roberta Albers Tops Golf Meet

Fort Smith, Ark. (AP)—Charging Roberta Albers overcame a four-hole deficit Saturday and sank pressure putts on the 35th and 36th greens to win the 36th annual Trans-Mississippi Women's Amateur Golf Tournament, 1-up.

The 19-year-old blonde belter from Miami Beach, Fla., was three down going to the final nine holes but played the backside even par, while her opponent, Pegy Conley, also 19, of Spokane, Wash., was five over par.

Field Aims At Aussies

London (AP) — The British tennis season reaches its climax this week with a big question waiting to be answered — can anyone break the Australian stranglehold on Wimbledon?

The two top Aussies, Roy Emerson and Margaret Smith are defending their singles titles in the two-weeks tournament starting Monday. Both have been made top seeds.

Emerson, 29, is trying for his third straight win. If he succeeds, he will be the first man to take three Wimbledon crowns in a row since Britain's Fred Perry did it in 1934, 1935, 1936.

American hopes rest mainly on Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, Calif., a successful Davis Cupper whose Wimbledon successes thus far are confined to one men's doubles title. He's been in Britain for two weeks, practicing hard on grass.

Ralston is seeded sixth and another Davis cupper, Clark Graebner of Beachwood, Ohio, is at No. 8 on the strength of an outstanding record on the world circuit in the last six months.

Rodeo Windup Sunday

The final day of the Lincoln Jaycees NEBRASKAland Days Rodeo appears to be the best the rodeo has had in its three years.

Cowboys go into the final go-around of events Sunday at 2 p.m. in Pershing Auditorium and point standings are so close in most of the events that riders and ropers as far down as sixth could take part of the $3,000-added purse the Jaycees are putting up.

One who probably won't, however, is Tex Martin. One of the top money winners on the circuit, Martin has gotten little done here and it appears that little of the annually increasing purse will be his.

Jake Wyant of Lincoln ranks second in that event as he rode down his steer in :05, another outstanding time. Wyant will try to take the leadership away from Douhitt Sunday afternoon in the second go-around.

Another standout performance came from Duane Eaton of Lamar, Colo., who roped a calf in :08.9. The next best time was Leonard Hampton's :10.7.

And of course, clowns were on the scene Saturday night. And they were kept mighty busy, partner. Only one rider, Ban Calhoun of Canyon City, Colo., was able to stay on a brahma bull, so the agile clowns were kept moving distracting the brahmas, all of whom have been in the national rodeo finals.

Some 3,100 were on had for the show, best of the rodeo's four-day run so far.

Saturday Events

Bareback Bronc Riding—1. Tom Moews, Thayer, Mo., 43; 2. (tie) Andy Andelt, Lincoln, and Kurt Keeling, N.D., 43; 4. Art Allen, Olney Springs, Colo. 38.

Mexico Leads Caribbean Games

San Juan, P.R. (AP) — Ann Lallande of Puerto Rico won her sixth swimming goal medal and Mexico's Guillermo Echevarria captured his fifth Saturday while the Mexican team regained the unofficial point lead in the 10th Central American and Caribbean Games.

Cuba has picked up 13 medals — gold, silver and bronze — in the track and field events — more than twice as many as any of the 16 other nations participating in the Games — and has moved into third place behind Puerto Rico.

Patric Is The Name, Thank You

. . . LSC Coach

By CHUCK WOODLING

Mrs. Patric Mills, new coach of the Lincoln Swim Club has a problem. No one spells her first name right.

It's Patric (pronounced Patrick). Not Patrice or Patricia. And don't call her Pat.

"I don't know what my mother had in mind when she named me," Mrs. Mills said, "but that's it."

Swimming runs in the Mills family. Her husband, Estel Mills, is diving coach at the University of Nebraska and an all-America diver at Iowa.

"Swimming is more of an avocation with me than a vocation," Mrs. Mills admits. "During the school year I'm a graduate assistant in French at the University."

She has outstanding qualifications for the French job too. A native of Connecticut, Mrs. Mills studied a year in Paris.

All Lincoln Swim team preparations are aimed at June 25. That's the date of the first meet of the season—the Junior Olympics in Omaha.

"We'll take about 40 swimmers," Mrs. Mills noted. "The oldest will be 17 and the youngest will be eight or nine."

So far Mrs. Mills is extremely pleased with the enthusiasm of her swimmers. About 90 were on hand for tryouts early Thursday morning at Woods Park pool.

"The temperature was only 55 degrees Thursday morning," she explained, "and they were all out there in the pool. If they can get up at 7 a.m. and freeze to death, they're a great bunch. It was too cold for me to get in."

The team will compete in 10 meets this summer—the last one coming in August. They'll take September off and begin preparation for winter meets in October. The schedule will run through April with May an off month. The cycle will start all over again next June.

A swimmer's dream is the annual AAU swim meet. This year it's set for Aug. 18-21 at Woods Park—the Lincoln team's home pool. There probably won't be any local swimmers competing, however.

"Our times just aren't good enough to qualify," Mrs. Mills admitted. "I would like to hope that some of our divers qualify but I doubt it."

Big Fairgrounds Races Drawing Top Nominations

Two of the richest races on the 1966 Fairgrounds schedule appeared certain to be run in two divisions each according to racing secretary Jack Fickler.

As the nominations came to a close last week, Fickler reported 50 thoroughbreds on the list for a Nebraska-bred juvenile two-year-old contest slated for running Wednesday, Aug. 3 over 5½ furlongs for a $3,000-added purse.

Jack Fickler

Similar Event

A similar event for three-year-olds drew 42 nominations. This affair will be staged Wednesday, July 27 and contested over a distance of one mile with a $3,000-added purse also.

Despite their age, several of the two-year-old runners have already established themselves as solid performers in their initial campaign.

One of the top choices is sure to be M. H. Van Berg's Mrs. J. C. and Fred Psota's Doyle's Gal. Both have recorded stakes wins already at Omaha's Ak-Sar-Ben.

Doyle's Gal has, in fact, won all three of her starts. Mrs. J. C. will have a pair of stable mates that could give her support. Also nominated from the nation's leading stable are Sold Command and Royal Dick.

Some other winners in the juvenile division include Bart Ford's recent winner Bart's Baby; Omer Hall's Toro Flyer; Pot O' Royal and Mink for Me from the Wood River Stable of R. E. Lee and a three-horse entry of Paul Kemling's which includes Tornado Rose, By Bella and A Dorrin.

Established Horses

The three-year-old race is loaded with nominations that have clearly established themselves as fine thoroughbreds.

Possibly the best known of the 42 is Prince Kem from the Kemling stable, a horse which won over $16,000 last season and has added to that substantially already in 1966.

Jerry Kirby of David City has entered his Get Atom, a recent Ak-Sar-Ben stakes winner at an astounding mutuel price of $185

Another three-horse entry is in this feature to represent M. H. Van Berg. They include Billispace, Silver Beauty and Foxie Space.

Some other well known horses on the list include R. E. Lee's Robust Kid, Laddie Hirsh's Bonigan, a stakes winner at Fonner Park; Hejaz, a recent Omaha winner from the Pensick stable of Lincoln; Leon Hall's Big Squealer and Noir Band, winner of its first two races this year at both Grand Island and Omaha.

NCAA Adopts Rules To Speed Up Baseball

Omaha, Neb. (AP) — The NCAA baseball rules committee, meeting at the College World Series, adopted speed-up rules for the 1966 season, but put them on an optional basis.

"College coaches are interested in fast, interesting games," said L. C. (Cap) Timm, Iowa State coach who is chairman of the rules committee. "The changes are radical, though, and this is why we're making them optional."

The speed-up rules can be used only by mutual agreement of both coaches. Included in the new rules are these provisions:

1. Only 60 seconds will be allowed for teams to change sides between innings. The pitcher must deliver the ball to the plate within 20 seconds and a ball will be called if he doesn't. The batter must be in the box within 30 seconds after the umpire calls for the pitch. If he isn't, he'll be called out.

2. After an infield out with no men on base the ball must be returned directly to the pitcher. After an outfield out with no men on base there can be only one more infield throw after the relay from the cutoff man.

3. A courtesy runner must be used when a pitcher or catcher reaches base, to permit the pitcher and catcher to be ready for the next inning.

4. The batter must use protective head gear, both at bat and on the bases.

5. A catcher or coach may call for the intentional walk and the batter will be automatically passed to first base.

The NCAA rules committee also adopted the laminated bat for trial use on a three-year trial basis.

Rifle Program Open to Boys

Y.M.C.A. Boys Club Summer Air Rifle Program will be offered to second to eighth graders starting June 27.

The youngsters will shoot on the Junior Marksmanship Award Program of the National Rifle Association (NRA) at Monday through Friday classes from 10:30 a.m. to 11:15 a.m. at the Central YMCA Boys Club, 210 North 13th

This NRA-approved program teaches the responsibility of handling a gun safely. Under supervision on the range, boys will learn to shoot properly by using a spring-air B.B. rifle. More information may be obtained from Charles Hoppe or Robert Rhoades.

Soap Box Derby Set Sunday

Forty-six racers will compete next Saturday and Sunday in the second Lincoln Soap Box Derby, co-sponsored by the American Legion Post No. 3 and Chevrolet.

Time trials will be held Saturday at 10 a.m. with the actual elimation proceedings next Sunday at 2 p.m. down the 52nd and R St. site.

Yesterday the racers were inspected at the Legion parking lot to make sure everything met specifications. Chevrolet provides the axles, wheels and steering column to assure uniformity, and the Legion post offers the helmets, T-shirts and trophies to all participants.

The youngsters are in charge of constructing the body and assembly.

Chuck Lawrence won the Lincoln Soap Box Derby last year and won his first heat in the national Soap Box Derby in Akron, Ohio., before being eliminated. He is not eligible to compete this year.

Some 252 cities will hold Soap Box Derbies this year and all winners advance to the Akron championships, which will be held this year on Aug. 6.

'Life-Long Thing' Gets Mart Awards

By TOM HENDERSON

"Its just been a life-long thing with me," Al Mart says of his love for pistol shooting.

Mart, who has been shooting competitively for 30 years has won over 1,500 trophies, has taken five regional championships, and won individual places in the national championships at Camp Perry, Ohio.

Henderson

"I was my own teacher actually," Mart discloses. "My first was hunting and shooting. When I was a kid, we didn't have money to do much tin can shooting, so when I shot, it usually was at game."

Mart competes for the Lincoln Rifle and Pistol Club of which he now serves as president.

The club, which was formed when five men chipped in $5 each in 1939, became chartered by the National Rifle Association in 1940. Mart was one of the first charter members.

Although the organization's membership has topped the 100 mark at times, Mart estimates a current roster of 80.

The club will hold one two-day shoot this season as opposed to two one-day affairs in the past. This event will be held on the club grounds west of the Lincoln Air Force Base housing unit, July 23-24.

Mart also uses his shooting skill to entertain at sports shows, and lectures on the use of small arms to civic organiaztions.

One of his toughest tricks is to split a .38 caliber bullet over an axe blade, breaking two balloons simultaneously. He also shoots backwards with the help of a mirror during his exhibitions.

The Lincoln Rifle and Pistol Club held the world all-around .22 caliber record from 1952-'57. To qualify for an all-around record it must better military, civilian and police scores.

Who Wins?

There's a Fox . . . Chase Is On

Chicago Sun-Times Special

Chicago — Jay Barymore once stayed up all night chasing a fox in a small wilderness cabin until he caught the animal by the tail.

Which proves, I guess, if you want to spend the night running around a small wilderness cabin you might catch a fox by the tail. But I'm not sure what you've got after that.

"Well, I got bit and scratched," said Jay. "That's what I got, although I guess that doesn't prove much of anything, either.

"But I want it made clear right away that I could not have caught the fox by the tail all by myself. I had immeasurable help from a friend and a stimulant I carry for cold nights."

"This fox and his mate came into the cabin one night and they snatched some bacon from the table. I do not mind a little bacon stealing, and I wasn't mad about that. But I said to my friend, "Next time they come in, let's catch them by the tail.'

"As I recall, he didn't light up with the idea, but the next night they came in and we slammed the door. We caught the female right away, but the male was a slippery cuss.

"I'd chase him around the cabin until I got tired. Then I'd tell my friend, 'you chase him for a bit while I sit down and administer a finger or two of stimulation. You do not have to catch the fox, just chase him while I apply artificial respiration.'

"If it had not been for the jug, and the friend, I'd have never made it. But just before sunup, I got a firm grip on his tail and tossed him in a gunny sack, and we gave both of them to a zoo, where they are living very happily now."

It does not seem unreasonable that a man who would spend the night in a small cabin trying to catch a fox by the tail might also stalk the wilds of Michigan's Upper Peninsula for two years so that he might shoot a bobcat with a rubber arrow.

"I first saw this cat while I was hunting two years ago in the Cedar River area—and I wish you'd say something nice about Cedar River because it is a very fine place to hunt," Jay said.

"The guide said he was going to have to be killed because a bobcat is a predator and can tear up a barnyard pretty good. But it was too pretty an animal to be skinned out and stretched on the wall.

"I told the guide I'd give him $10 if he didn't kill the cat until I could get back up there with a bow and a rubber-tipped arrow. I figured I could stun the cat with the arrow, and give him to the zoo.

"Only I didn't figure on how smart he was. I must have tracked him 12, maybe 13 times the last two years. I'd sneak through the forest, thinking how smart I was. Then I'd look around, there he would be, sitting in back of me, laughing like hell.

"Finally, the guide said I'd have to get him this year, because he was getting too big and about ready to order little pigs for dinner. We built a blind, so he would get used to it.

"Then we took some chicken feathers, plucked them out with tweezers so there wouldn't be any man smell, and planted them on a limb of a pine tree near the cat's den.

"After five nights, he crawled up the tree and started smelling the feathers. He knew it smelled like a chicken, but he couldn't figure out how a chicken would come to be sitting on a pine tree limb.

"While he was meditating on this, I let him have it with the rubber tipped arrow. I had asked my guide friend to run up and throw 10 seconds, or so.

"But the guide said, 'We the cat in a bag, because he have been friends many years, and I will help you catch a fox by the tail. But not a bobcat because I've grown used to operating with two arms, and would not like the number reduced to one.'

"So I tossed the cat into the bag and when he came to, he didn't like it very much. But now he's living in the bachelor quarters at a zoo. It was fun, and I don't think anybody else has ever done it."

Fishermen: Keep Alert For Tags

Fishermen, commercial and otherwise, are being enlisted to help in this year's Missouri River project to determine fish movements, the Game Commission has announced.

Commission technicians will be tagging and releasing fish at various points along the river. When fishermen catch these tagged fish, they are asked to remove the tag and return it along with some information to the Commission.

If the fish is shorter than legal length, anglers are asked to remove the tag, measure the fish, and then quickly return the fish to the water.

Fish will be tagged with either a red or green plastic band attached to the jaw. Each tag will have a number and the letters "NEB". All special tags are worth at least $1 each to any angler who returns them. However, every tag with a number ending in 20, 40, 60, 80, or 100 is worth $5.

Fishermen are urged to send the tags and information each time a tagged fish is caught, rather than waiting until several tags are collected.

Required information that must accompany the tag includes the exact place and date of the catch, length of the fish, and the angler's name and address. This should be sent to Larry Morris, Game Commission, State Capitol, Lincoln, 68509.

Operation Outdoors

by Chuck Roberts

There are two great moments in the life of every master of a fine hunting dog. The first is when he watches a two or three-old-month pup chewing on a shoe or something and sees within this unproven dog the greatness of a champion. All things are relative and to this person "greatness" may mean a dog who'll plunge into an icy river in 10 degree weather to retrieve a duck or goose.

Or maybe to another person it may be a rock-hard point on a covey of quail while half-way through a fence. Or winning the National Championship.

"Tony"

But whatever it is, it's a great moment because he can make it up as great as he wants. There's nothing to make him think differently at this point.

The second great moment comes when it actually happens. Lincoln dog owner and trainer Marge Johnson is half-way home.

Last week out in Wyoming she qualified her great black Labrador "Tony" for the National Open Retriever Championship to be held in St. Louis later this year. To many it would seem the "great" thing would be to win this biggest trial . . . and maybe it is. But when you consider there are probably 5,000 dogs trying for the honor of just qualifying to run this trial and only 50 or so will make the grade, it's a pretty great thing.

Qualifies for National

So is to qualify for the National Amateur Retriever Championship. Tony did that, too.

In fact Marge, husband Claus, and Tony are somewhere between here and Spokane, Washington, today enroute to this National Championship Trial. It takes a first place win in an AKC licensed field trial to qualify for this event. Tony has seven firsts so far this year.

In anyone's book the knowledge of a home-town dog running in the National Open, the biggest retriever championship trial in the nation, brings up a little pride and crossed fingers. Just like horses, King, and the Kentucky Derby.

'Ebony' Qualifies

But when you put down two home-town dogs in the same big trial it gets even bigger.

The second Lincoln dog is Ebony owned by Bill Van Sickle . . . Lincoln dog trainer and handler Joe Schomer of Schomer Kennels qualified this young black lab to run the St. Louis national event last week. One fact of mentioning importance is that Tony and Ebony are litter mates.

Marge Johnson and Joe Schomer have the toughest trial in the country before them this fall. Joe's won the National before. Twice, in fact. In 1957 and 1959.

But the old saying that "every dog has his day" will be the decider in this one. Win or loose, it takes a great dog with fine training and handling just to get there. Joe is one of the best professional trainers in the country. His record says so.

And Marge Johnson's accomplishments as an amateur rank among the best. Either dog could win this trial if he has his day . . . and the breaks.

Bullhead Fishing Tops

We weren't there but those who were at the East Lake at Hickman called last weekend's bullhead fishing "a ball," "the best I've ever seen," and "doggone good." Conservation Officers Dale Bruha and LeRoy Orvis said it was better than that and "all you had to do was throw your line in the water."

At some of the other area reservoirs bluegill and catfishing have picked up. On more than one occasion there have been some pound-plus bluegills hauled out of these lakes.

Instead of cussing the moss that's springing up in area lakes, fish in it instead. You may not like it but the fish do.

Car No. 24, Driver Beckman Flying High in Lincoln Races

Midwest Speedway was host to its largest non-holiday group of super modified cars in history last week when 32 of the speedsters showed up for a Sunday night of racing.

But when the last checkered flag fell it was still Lloyd Beckman and car No. 24 out in front by several lengths. The veteran Lincoln driver had captured his heat race and the big A-Feature plus getting a third place in the trophy dash.

Beckman is the latest in a line of drivers who have had exceptional luck with Charlie Williams' fantastic No. 24. Never in Lincoln racing history has one car so dominated the Capital City scene.

However, it wasn't always that way and Williams is keenly aware of the problems involved in getting a car to perform to perfection.

And right now the owner must have mixed emotions as he has another new car in the garage just about ready to run. Should Williams take anything away from 24 to put on the new machine is the big question.

Williams Beckman

Horsepower isn't always the answer to whether a car will win races or finish back in the pack. Handling is equally as important if not more so.

And right now No. 24 is handling almost perfectly. Beckman is off to a commanding lead in the Nebraska Modified Racing Association point standings and chances are he may never look back.

No. 24 won the title last year also only the driver was John Wilkinson. The year before that it was Cliff Sealock who was at the controls when the car was new and at the time Williams became fully aware of how it felt to finish out of the money week after week.

But all that has changed now. Williams, Beckman and car 24 are on top. How long they stay there could depend on how many parts the crew decides to shift onto the new machine.

Regardless of what they do plenty drivers will again take dead aim on the leader tonight at Midwest Speedway. Lonnie Jensen has been driving well in his No. 2 and Frank Brennfoerder has a brand new car No. 69.

Joe Saldana has had some trouble with No. 65 and in the meantime has taken some rides in different cars each week.

These and all the favorites in the Lincoln area will be on hand for tonight's first green flag at 8 p.m. Midwest Speedway is located at 27th and Superior St. just one mile north of 27th and Cornhusker Highway.

Ortiz Favored For Defending

The first title fight in Pittsburgh since Jersey Joe Walcott knocked out Ezzard Charles to win the heavyweight crown in 1951 is expected to attract a crowd of about 8,000 people and a gate of around $80,000.

Ortiz, a blond Puerto Rican-born New Yorker, makes the first defense of the title he recaptured from Panama's Ismael Laguna last Nov. 13 at San Juan. He had won the title from Joe Brown in 1962 and defended successfully four times before he was upset by Laguna in Panama City April 10, 1965.

SOLUNAR TABLES

WHEN TO FISH OR HUNT

The schedule of solunar periods for the following week as printed below has been taken from John Alden Knight's Solunar Tables. Plan your day so that you will be fishing good territory, hunting good cover during these times if you wish to find the best sport that each has to offer. The tables are not a guarantee you will catch fish or see game during the period, however.

The major periods begin at the time shown and last for an hour and a half or two hours thereafter, and are in black face type. The minor periods are somewhat shorter in duration.

KLMS Takes Fish Contest

Emerald—KLMS won the first annual Lincoln Invitational Fishing Tournament at Pawnee State Lake near here Saturday with a total three-hour catch of 1½ pounds.

Recent heavy rain fall in the watershed area caused plant life to rise to the top and the water to be murky in places However, the fishing ability of some of the team members must be questioned.

Contest sponsors hope the meet can be expanded in later years and become a Nebraska promotional comparable to the one-shot antelope hunt in westen Nebraska.

Other teams in the contest which was judged on a poundage basis, were KOLN TV, First National Bank, the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce and the County Courthouse.

TEAM SCORING

1. KLMS, 1½ lbs.; 2. Journal and Star, 1 lb.; 3. First National Bank, 15 oz.; 4. KOLN-TV, ½ lb.; 5. (tie) Lincoln Chamber of Commerce and County Courthouse, 0.

Ladybird, Actor Heston Highlight NEBRASKAland Days Activities

Lincoln came alive this week with the sounds, smells and colors of NEBRASKAland Days.

The week of carnival rides, concerts, dances and parades hit a high spot Wednesday when the First Lady, Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson, and film star Charlton Heston rode in the NEBRASKAland Days Parade. Following the parade, Ladybird presented the Buffalo Bill award to actor Heston.

Other activities of the week included the Governor's Nebraskana art show, the muzzle-loading rifle shooting championships, the fast-draw championships, the Governor's Conference on Natural Beauty and the NEBRASKAland championship rodeo.

All Bills Get Solon Approval

The Nebraska Legislature passed all three special session bills before it adjourned Monday morning.

The two major bills were those sponsored by Gov. Morrison to temporarily solve an intangible tax revenue crisis in the state's larger cities and school districts.

All foreign corporation stock will now be taxed at its fair market value, rather than book value.

Session's LB 2 May Hold Up $30,000 Refund

LB2, passed by the Nebraska Legislature during special session may hold up $30,000 in taxation refunds.

Refunds on illegal penalties collected in 1962-64 from Lancaster County residents—to date amounting to $29,547 on 1,335 claims—have been proceeding steadily for the past four months.

But payment has halted, which may mean that over 1,600 claims will go unpaid.

The possibility was brought up by the fact the special session law cuts from two years to 60 days the time taxpayers have to file a claim for refunds collected illegally.

Spending Hike Planned by Industry

New York (UPI)—Despite further signs last week that the business boom was cooling off, a threat of inflation continued to nag the economy.

Automobile sales in the first 10 days of June fell below the level of a year earlier, personal income climbed to a record in May but was below the average gain in the first quarter of this year, and consumers indicated their optimism about the business outlook had weakened.

Nevertheless, Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. of New York said inflation is still a threat despite signs of a slowing in the rate of economic growth.

Noting that demand continues to outrun supply at numerous points in the economy, Morgan Guaranty cites:

The labor market, where unemployment among skilled and experienced workers remains exceptionally low.

Plans of industry to increase capital spending this year by 17% over last year.

An incease of about 25% this year in the volume of industrial and commercial construction activity.

New car dealers sold 238,214 American-made cars in the first third of June, off from 250,847 a year earlier. Even so sales were the second highest for the period.

Personal income in May rose $2.4 billion from April to an annual rate of $565.5 billion but it was below the first quarter's annual rate increase of $3 billion.

The University of Michigan Survey Research Center reported that consumers appear to feel that the economic expansion has met with some barriers. While two-thirds of the people questioned in its survey expect times will be good next year, only 19% expect they will be better than at present.

Most progress was made in the first two sessions. Blue chips were in demand on both of these days but then began to backtrack.

High-flying glamor shares made good progress at times but price swings, even in this sector, were very often limited to fractions.

From a fundamental angle, analysts said they feel traders and investors are still behaving cautiously in view of the Vietnam war, the possibility of a tax boost, the economic outlook and the future of the British pound.

Sharpest Pressure On Heavy Steers

Omaha (UPI)—There was a turnabout last week in the Omaha fat cattle trade from the previous week as far as the day to day price pattern was concerned.

A cautious note of optimism which had appeared in the form of somewhat better quotations on opening rounds faded later as dressed beef prices failed to support the higher livestock prices.

Fed steers and heifers sold weak to 50c lower with steers over 1,200 pounds under the sharpest pressure and heifers generally taking a minimum loss. The steer top for the week was 26.35. The heifer top was 25.50.

The average price of slaughter steers last week, as computed by the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture, was 24.91, compared with 24.67 the previous week and 25.45 a year ago. The heifer price average last week was 24.21 against 23.91 the previous week and 24.77 a year ago.

The cow market weakened sharply at the close and for the week was steady to as much as 1.00 lower. Canners and cutters ranged from 15.50-18.50, few to 19.00 early.

Replacement cattle and calves numbered 2,000 last week. Prices held steady.

'Disappearing Deductible' Plan Offered

Many insurance companies in Nebraska are offering a new "disappearing deductible" feature in both homeowner and business fire insurance policies, according to State Insurance Director Frank Barrett.

Under the new policy, a homeowner or businessman may pay a reduced rate for fire insurance by purchasing the disappearing deductible plan.

For instance, if a business policy contained a $1,000 deductible provision, that amount would be deducted in the case of smaller fire losses.

But if the loss exceeded a certain total, such as $10,000, the deductible "dasappears" and the firm collects the full amount of the loss.

Narcotic Use Not Widespread In Armed Forces

Washington (UPI)—Preliminary investigation has failed to produce evidence in support of charges voiced in Congress that use of narcotics is widespread in the Armed Forces, Defense officials said Saturday.

A check with Saigon showed that the Army in Vietnam during the last year has had only 48 cases involving about 60 men, in which possession or use of narcotics was alleged.

The officials pointed out that this would be less than one-twentieth of one per cent of the troops at the war front. They added that none of the cases involved confirmed addiction; that most were merely experimental.

French Storm

Lille, France (UPI)—Fierce summer storms have swept northern France, uprooting trees and roofs and cutting the highway from Audinghem to the channel coast resort of Cape Gris Nez.

Roads in some regions were under 20 inches of water and property damage was extensive.

Steps Planned To Stop Dearth Of Instructors

Washington (UPI) — The government will take new steps to see that federal research programs do not rob colleges of too many science teachers.

Budget Bureau Director Charles L. Schultze described the changes in a letter in response to an October, 1965, House subcommittee report.

The report found that "too many scientists and engineers have been diverted over a relatively short period into research work, and too few are available for teaching."

In line with the government operations subcommittee recommendations, Schultze said the Budget Bureau would seek to improve the gathering, analysis and use of information regarding the supply and demand of scientific manpower.

Coordination

Coordination of this information would remain with the National Science Foundation. Schultze asked Dr. Leland J. Haworth, director of the Foundation, to propose ways of encouraging teaching by researchers and to define when, if ever, the government should require full-time research as a condition of its grants.

PAGEOS to Be New Star For Summer Skies

Vandenberg Air Firce Base Calif. (AP)—The big, shiny balloon satellite PAGEOS, intended to give man an exact idea where everything is on earth, is scheduled for launch no later than June 23, officials reported Saturday.

If placed in orbit 2,600 miles above the earth, the 247-pound, 100-foot diameter aluminum-coated ball should serve as a reflective light source for cameras at 41 observation points around the world. It will carry no instruments.

Spokesmen for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration say PAGEOS should be as bright as the star Polaris in the evening sky.

PAGEOS stands for Passive Geodetic Earth-Orbiting Satellite and is one phase in the mapping program of the U.S. National Geodetic Satellite program.

By Accident It's Big Red 'Uniforms' for All-Staters

When the bright red and white sweatshirts—selected especially for the All-State band's participation in the NEBRASKAland Parade were chosen, John Moran, director of All-State didn't realize that he had started a first.

"They were not intended to be an official uniform for All-Staters," said Moran, University of Nebraska associate professor of music education. "But students in art, speech and journalism sections have been given an opportunity to obtain them as souvenirs."

Now, the colors of the University of Nebraska are showing up all over the campus, since the majority of the 450 high school students have adopted the "uniform."

NU Seal

The blazing red short-sleeved sweatshirts carry the white lettering "NEBRASKA, ALL-STATE" and the University of Nebraska seal.

This is the first time in the memory of those connected with All-State that any particular apparel has been adopted as special dress for the near three-week All-State sessions.

Badges Worn

"Previously," Prof. Moran said, "All-Staters have worn badges for identification. This may be the beginning of a new custom. About 160 students marched in the parade this week, and it was very colorful."

All-State students, preparing for the second week of classes taught by University professors, face a heavy schedule.

The highlights:

—Monday, 7:30 p.m., student recital and speech writing, Nebraska Union.

—Tuesday, 7:30 p.m., All-State party, Nebraska Union ballroom.

—Wednesday, 7:30 p.m., All-State Outdoor Pops Concert, west lawn of the Sheldon Memorial Art Gallery.

—Thursday, 7:30 p.m., student recital, Nebraska Union, ballroom.

By HELEN HAGGIE

Mrs. Forke in her living room.

Double purpose room.

The Forke home at 2636 High.

"A perfect jewel of a house" are the words several people have used to describe the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Forke at 2636 High. And truly, any person who is charmed by Early American decor will be charmed by the Forke home.

Mrs. Forke says, "We made no major structural changes, when we moved in—in fact we purchased it in 1961 and lived in it three or four years before we even did a bit of redecorating.

There still has been no structural change. Nancy VanDervoort helped me decorate."

As soon as the visitor enters the foyer of the home, he is pleased by the use of blues, golds and shades of beige and browns which continue into the living room at the right.

Matching materials have been used in strategic spots—the draperies and the davenport, for instance. The charm of yesteryear is emphasized by the use of pewter mugs, plates and candlesticks on the mantle. An Early American balance scales graces the coffee table. A screened porch is at the rear of the living room.

The modern kitchen is accented with material on the cupboards which matches the curtains—and through the kitchen is a charming breakfast room. "We also use it as our card room," Mrs. Forke explains. (Besides the kitchen entry, there is one to this room from the living room.)

"All the wallpaper has been lacquered," Mrs. Forke says, when asked about the wallpaper in the kitchen.

Blue shades are carried to the upstairs, where the best possible use of space has been made. The master bedroom is done in lovely shades of gold and blue. The guest room is done in blue tones with white accent. Seven-year-old Kristen's room is the kind little girls must dream of. Pink and white wallpaper matches the bedspread, and a ruffle crowns the head posters.

"We really love the quiet here," Mrs. Forke says. The house faces Lincoln Country Club golf course, and the lot runs deep in back.

A playhouse for Kristen is tall enough that it may be used for a tool storage spot when she is

Activities Take on Kaleidoscopic Pattern

Weddings, high school reunions and NEBRASKAland Days dominated activities Saturday night.

Also at the Lincoln Hotel, the Lincoln Northeast High School Class of 1956 ended the first day of their weekend reunion with a dinner-dance. A morning coffee started the reunion, which ends today with a picnic at Pioneers Park.

Prenuptial dinners, receptions and wedding dinners Saturday night added to the whirl of excitment for many young couples, who have chosen a June wedding date.

State Conference

The Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic met all day at the Lincoln Hotel for a state conference and election of officers. A dinner and evening program completed the day's agenda.

At the Cornhusker Hotel, Investors Diversified Services had an afternoon meeting and evening dinner.

A rodeo, a barbeque, and midway activities, all part of NEBRASKAland Days rounded out the night and the week for many.

World of Women

Sen. Hughes records her vote.

Future Written in the Stars

By JAN SACK

Surely her future is written in the stars: Calista means the Big Dipper. The name was chosen out of Greek mythology for her grandmother and handed on to her.

She is Calista Cooper Hughes and her name, timeless as the stars and stories it came from, belongs, too, to her daughter and granddaughter.

The name emphasizes the starry life of Mrs Hughes herself, state senator from Humboldt and one of the three women currently serving in the legislature.

Although she was an American abroad for more than 20 years while her husband was with the State Department, Mrs. Hughes is a native Nebraskan and a daughter of a pioneer family

Her foreign travels began at age 21 when she left for Japan to be with her brother, Charles Cooper, in Toyko with the diplomatic service Romance was part of this jaunt for she met her husband, Morris N. Hughes.

Upon his retirement in 1961, he chose to live in Nebraska. This gave Mrs. Hughes what would later prove to be a golden opportunity. Never one with time on her hands, Mrs. Hughes became deeply involved in Humboldt community affairs One of her pet projects was the senior Housing Authority.

This dream became a reality Monday when she heard from Sen. Carl T. Curtis that Hill-Burton funds were released for the hospital-nursing wing.

Because of her interest in the community, she was asked to run for the Legislature in 1964 from the First District. She had no political background, but her family (the Coopers) had been involved for years.

"The only way I could do it was to use the Cooper name and campaign. My being a woman was a hazard," she conceded

In the Legislature she is a member of the military and government affairs, public health and welfare and urban affairs committees She also serves on the interim committees dealing with highway study and mental health statutes.

"Women are less afraid of progress and innovations—are less afraid of jeopardizing their political future," she said. "They're willing to gamble for progress."

She approved the courage of the 1965 Legislature in meeting major problems of the state. Mrs. Hughes was referring to the change enacted in the tax system and setting up the Administrative Services Dept.

"I'm proud of Nebraska. It's a conservative state, but the people can cope with the problems once they know about them," Mrs Hughes said.

She feels this is Nebraska's problem. The people aren't aware of what's happening Mrs. Hughes said Nebraska is about 25 years behind in education, highways, state government and other services

Not only is she a state senator, but also serves on several boards She was appointed by Gov Frank Morrison to the policy board of the State Rehabilitation Service and was elected chairman She's a member of the Governor's Commission on the Status of Women.

Monday she was appointed by the governor to the board which will decide how to use Title I funds from the Elementary and Secondary Education Act

Mrs. Hughes is vitally concerned with the youth of Nebraska. Earlier this year she was a part of the Master's Week program at the University of Nebraska. In talking with the students, Mrs Hughes said, "They are so articulate and cognizant of the problems.

"This is a great credit to the University professors This knowledge was not available to me in the 1930s" She is a graduate of the University with a major in political science and minors in French and economics. Her son, Morris Jr., is now a University student.

Mrs. Hughes sees Nebraska as a pioneer state with the young people as its greatest hope.

"We must stop this youth drain. I feel if Nebraska offered them similar opportunities, they would either stay or else return later," she said.

What does a woman with such important things on her mind do for relaxation? Well she's active in the Humboldt Presbyterian Church, various women's clubs and enjoys cooking and working in her flower garden. And, if this isn't enough she, and her husband spend part of their time speaking before various groups.

Male Modes

Clothes Can Make a Man's Vacation, or Dress Right for the Occasion

There's general agreement with the saying that "clothes make the man," and we'll add a bit to that by flatly contending that "clothes make a man's vacation." Now this will not be a suggestion that you dress better for your period of fun and leisure, as much as a suggestion that you dress right for such occasions.

That means hitting a happy medium between being over-casual (sloppy), or under-casual (over-dressed). Either extreme can affect one's acceptance by other vacationers — and, in turn, one's enjoyment. Avoid this by checking the clothes customs of the place, or places, you are visiting.

Tips on Vacation Clothes: It's possible to "take a little, have a lot" if you select things that can be matched-and-mixed. And it's wise, in a limited wardrobe, to select accessories such as shirts, ties, socks, etc., that go with all clothing colors you take along . . . It is smart, too, to pack as much wash-and-wear apparel as possible. Things worn even late at night can be laundered easily —and will drip-dry in time —to put on the next morning, if needed.

Another hint: Avoid having all your sportswear in bold and bright patterns. People will remember how frequently you wore — for example —slacks in a huge glen plaid, but they'd be completely unconscious of such repetition if said slacks were plain colored or neatly-patterned.

New for Vacationing: Hat departments in men's stores are alive with color in hats and caps for sportsmen.

Care of Clothes — You can restore the shiny look to galoshes by applying a coat of black liuqid shoe polish . . . TV-lewing — Did you happen to be watching the Tonight Show when Johnny Carson said about a friend "He's so fashion-conscious, he wears bell-bottom underwear!"

Historical — The Earl of Cardigan, leader of the legendary Charge of the Light Brigade, got tired of pulling sweaters over his head one day: slit the sweater down the front, and had buttons sewed on. Presto change-o — The Cardigan Sweater! . . . A Future Closure — Maybe —Some firms are experimenting with magnetic closures, where the positive side of your jacket would adhere to the negative side!

Gustatory Fashions — Upcoming color trends include "Coffee" and "Chile" — to join the "maize," "oatmeal," and other shades now on the men's wear menu!

DEAR DIARY

Our graduation story concerns Dee Ann Devoe, who was graduated with honors from Fremont High School. Her grandmother, Mrs. I. J. Devoe attended the commencement ceremonies—which, coincidentally were held on her birthday.

When a big box of flowers arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dee Devoe (Dee Ann's parents) with a card directed to "Mom," Mrs. I. J. Devoe thought her son had sent them to her.

But she was wrong! The graduate, who will attend the University of Nebraska next fall, had sent the flowers to her mother. And the note enclosed said they were in appreciation for all that her mother had done to make that night possible for Dee Ann.

Most teen-agers are pretty fine!

A Bridal Tradition

Our story about a bride, realty concerns the history of her dress.

On Saturday, when Mr. and Mrs. Kile W. Johnson (Cuz Guenzel) were wed, the bride wore the same dress that has been worn by five other brides in her family:

Her mother, Mrs. R. C. Guenzel; two aunts, Mmes. John Whitten of Colorado Springs and Thomas Pansing; a cousin, Mrs. Alan Plummer of Chicago, and a cousin's bride, Mrs. Thomas Pansing Jr.!

Another Reason

Tuesday—Flag Day—still brings to the mind of a young woman the birthday she celebrated some years ago.

It was her sixth, and a sad one for her because her parents told her on that day the flags were not flown because it WAS her birthday—but because of the commemoration of the adoption of a national flag!

Animals Eat Well

If there are some well-fed cats and dogs at Lincoln's Humane Society, a good share of the thanks can go to Mrs. Betty Barber of 4911 Everett who has been treating the orphaned pets to home-cooked stew.

James C. Lewis, Humane Society board member, said Mrs. Barber trims scraps from meat while she is cooking, keeps them in her freezer until she has a supply, then cooks up a big kettle of stew and takes it to the animal shelter.

One last note on brides:

One confused young woman filled the line marked "When and Where at Home" with the name of the church in which she was wed!

All Saints Chapel to be dedicated today.

Retirement Village Dedicates Chapel

Hastings — Dedication ceremonies for All Saints Chapel at the Good Samaritan Village, here, have been set for 3 p.m. today with Dr. August Hoeger, founder of the Good Samaritan Society, as speaker.

Building of the chapel marks the first time a house of worship has been constructed for a retirement facility in Nebraska, according to the Village's director, the Rev. William Goldbeck.

The chapel features stained glass windows depicting Biblical stories and an organ—the gift of Mr. and Mrs. John Quirk of Hastings—which can be heard in both the chapel and the 400-seat capacity community activity building.

A 128-bed capacity nursing home is scheduled for completion Sept. 1, Goldbeck said. At that time, the Village is expected to house about 1,000 residents.

Missionary Can't Wait To Return to Vietnam

"Tin-Lanh" is Vietnamese for "the gospel—good news," and in South Vietnam, "everybody knows the good news," said a Christian missionary of 10 years.

Rexilius

The Christian and Missionary Alliance Church has been in Vietnam since 1911, but Lincolnite Royce F. Rexilius started spreading "Tin-Lanh" in 1954. Since then, he has served two five-year terms and is anxiously waiting to return for a third at the end of the year.

"The Evangelical Protestant church in Vietnam is a direct result of our mission work," he said. Membership now numbers about 100,000, there are 348 Protestant churches, and 340 Vietnamese and tribal pastors.

For a long time, his was the only missionary group in that country. Three more—the Southern Baptists, the Mennonites, and the World-Wide Evangelication Crusade—have come in the past 12 years, but according to Rexilius, "the other churches haven't been recognized."

His has, however. In fact, during a recent government ban on public meetings, his church alone was given permission to hold a previously scheduled evangelistic crusade. The crusade was held in a large government stadium at no cost, he said.

Rexilius gives the present war-torn situation in the country as partial explanation for the success of his mission work in recent years.

The basic religion of the Vietnamese has been ancestor worship and, according to Rexilius, his church "has filled a void" caused by an inability of the people to get to the outlying districts where families are buried.

"The Protestant church has taken no position in the war," Rexilius said. "Members can do what they want, but the church's primary thrust is evangelism."

The war has, however, hurt mission operations to some degree. "As far as mission work goes, the situation hinders the rural work," Rexilius said. "But the city is wide open. We've had more converts than ever before in church history."

Originally centered in Hanoi, mission headquarters were forced to shift to Saigon in 1954, but according to Rexilius, the mission didn't feel any real pressure until "about four years ago when the war took more of a direction."

The nationalist church still has 11 pastors in the north, but "no word comes down," he said. Results of a recent general assembly election indicate that the government has pretty much gained control.

"Saigon in 1960 only had two churches," the missionary said. "Now there are more than 20 and plans for six additional ones are being made."

Rexilius earned his theology degree at St. Paul Bible College in Minnesota, and his B.A. at the University of Nebraska. A member of the Havelock Church of the Christian and Missionary Alliance, he lives at 6736 Ballard with his wife, Betty, and three children — who accompany him on his mis-

As for returning to Vietnam on this stint, Rexilius says, "I can't wait."

Nebraska EUBs Lean To Methodist Union

Callaway — The Evangelical United Brethren Church of Nebraska will elect spokesmen this week for a special session conference with the Methodist Church in November.

The EUB conference, here Tuesday-Friday, will produce five laymen and five ministers to represent state EUB congregations when the proposed Methodist-EUB merger is discussed on the national level in Chicago

Dr. John F. Wichelt of Lincoln, EUB conference superintendent, said the Chicago conference will be "the first opportunity for our church to vote on the proposed plan of union." Wichelt gives the merger document "a better than 50-50 chance" for approval by the state, but he said "changes will have to be made."

Tom McAnally of Lincoln, Methodist information director in Nebraska, agreed. "I think there'll be a lot of changes, but they will be mostly mechanical. The disagreements among our delegates are not so major that vast changes will have to be made," McAnally said.

Nebraska EUBs and Methodists share the same shortage of ministerial service to rural areas, according to McAnally.

Already, the two denominations have started "yoking" ministeries—in more than a dozen cases, a minister of one denomination serves a church of both. In other cases, at Culbertson, for example, Methodists and EUBs have voted to merge their two churches and affiliate with the EUB denomination.

But even though both denominations of the state level are looking with optimism for a favorable vote on union this fall, feelings run toward pessimism about the annual conference voting which follows. Even if passed at the general conference, the merger will not go into effect without a majority vote of the individual states.

Not all states are as enthusiastic about union as Nebraska.

"In areas of the country where there is a large EUB population, there is a great deal of opposition," McAnally said.

Besides, the merger document still doesn't read entirely to the liking of the EUBs. One hurdle to be lowered, according to Wichelt, is the matter of segregated racial jurisdiction by Methodist churches.

McAnally called this "a problem of house cleaning" and indicated that a solution was currently being sought.

Another rough spot is the provision for the selection of superintendents. The document allows for the appointment of district superintendents by the bishop, the present Methodist system. The EUBs, however, favor the election of superintendents.

Salvation Army Laymen To Gain in Participation

Chicago Daily News Special

Chicago — In the Salvation Army, the officers always issued the marching orders. The soldiers carried them out.

Now for the first time in its 100-year history, the Army has asked the soldiers (laymen) to review traditional strategy and help the officers (clergy) make long-range plans.

Their nationwide sessions in Chicago launched a "second century movement" that top officers hope will lead to an up-dating of the Salvation Army.

Commissioner Samuel Hepburn, New York-based national commander, compared the up-dating movement to the "Aggiornamento" of the Roman Catholic Church, started by Pope John XXIII when he convened the second Vatican Council.

Like the Catholics, the Salvationists are beginning to stress greater participation of the laity in both the worship and the works of their churches.

But this involves turning over more responsibility and authority to lay leaders, both men and women.

Hepburn said in an interview here that the time may come when local congregations — known as corps — are run by laity rather than clergy.

"They (laymen) resent the idea that the clergy have a more holy responsibility," he said.

Wesleyan Has New Chaplain

The Rev. Jerald C. Walker of San Francisco, Calif., will take over the duties of chaplain and assistant professor of religion at Nebraska Wesleyan University.

He will fill the vacancy created by the resignation of the Rev. Dayton L. Olson.

This Wednesday, a dramatic reading of Archibald MacLeish's "J.B.," and updated rendering of the story of Job, will be given. A panel discussion of prejudice and discrimination is scheduled June 29.

A tour of Sheldon Art Gallery July 6 will be followed by a discussion of the religious implications of modern art, and the "God is dead" theology will be treated at the final forum, July 13.

Garden Gossip

Cut Roses With Care

By EMERY NELSON
County Extension Agent

Removing rose blossoms from the plants is an important culture practice. Cutting the flowers before seeds start to form will permit the plant to use energy for new bloom and not to form seeds.

Besides, when the blossoms are cut the plant will begin to start new growth which will produce new flowers a little later in the season.

Long stems should not be taken with roses cut for indoor bouquets unless the rose plant is expecially vigorous. The leaves of all plants are the factories in which the energy of the sun is used to manufacture food material.

If too many leaves are removed with the bud, the plant will be robbed of its ability to produce adequate food for new growth.

Hybrid tea roses usually have three leaflets at the top of the rose stem. The lower part of the stem has a spray of five or more leaflets.

The Week House Of Colonial Has a Balanced Charm, Exuding Warmth and Good Cheer

By Associated Press

Any public preference which lasts from generation to generation must be based on solid value. That applies particularly to the two-story colonial house, which has remained high on the popularity list despite the introduction of many new styles over the years.

Attempting to explain the reason for this continuing popularity is not easy, since the colonial, which has many variations within itself, is lacking in spectacular features.

This might be its biggest asset: that nothing about it overwhelms you. Instead, there is a kind of balanced, familiar charm that exudes warmth and good cheer.

The latest House of the Week, for example, has a pleasant, homey appearance about it.

And if architectural history repeats itself, its combination of narrow clapboards, red cedar V-joint vertical boards, diamond-paned windows and pitched asphalt-shingled roof will be as stylish 50 years from now as it was 50 years ago and as it is today.

Four Bedrooms

Inside, there are four bedrooms and 2½ baths with a total of 2033 square feet of habitable area on two floors. The unusually large and impressive foyer designed by architect William Chirgotis is the key to efficient circulation, distributing traffic effectively throughout the first floor divisions and the second-floor bedrooms.

An attractive staircase leads directly from the foyer to the bedrooms. An open, spacious stairwell eliminates any feeling of congestion on the second floor. The master bedroom has a private full bath, with a stall shower and a full-wall mirrored vanity.

Family Room

The kitchen and family room are at the rear of the first floor, but can be reached directly from the foyer without crossing any other rooms. The 15' of width across the back of the kitchen provides sufficient eating accommodations for the entire family, and the right side of the room, has been designated in the floor plans as a dinette.

There is a lavatory between the kitchen and the family room. Sliding glass doors in the family room take full advantage of the view, light and access to the rear patio and garden areas. A fireplace surrounded by a full brick wall highlight the family room.

Access to Garage

On the other side of the kitchen is the laundry room, with access to the outside as well as to the two-car garage. The garage also has a rear door, which makes it handy for putting away garden tools, toys, lawn chairs and the like.

While the plans call for garage doors at the side, these doors could be located at the front if the width of the lot did not permit a driveway at the side.

New for 1966: A self-rimming lavatory, doing away with the metal strip trim adjoining the vanity counter top; also vivid new lavatory colors such as larkspur, tomato and apricot.

—ON THE— HOUSE

By HELEN HAGGIE

News from the American Carpet Institute is that color and textures add fillip to carpets which will be seen in the summer market this next week.

In the green and gold groups, avocado, moss and a new brilliant emerald or rich forest green are favorites. The latter are the newer shades of dark colors offered. New versions of citron and lemon-lime tints are those on the light side.

Some blues have a hint of violet—others a hint of green. Clear blues include royal, sapphire and Baltic. Cerise, cyclamen, deep ruby and rich crimson are on hand for rolling out the red carpet. There also are pinks — single pinks, as well as those combined with purple, orange or red.

Mower Check List

Last year 76,000 persons in the United States were injured by lawn mowers. Almost nine out of 10 of these accidents were caused by powered rotaries, the most popular kind of mower.

At each exit to the Lincoln Air Force Base is a sign with this warning: "Fasten your seat belts. You are now entering the most dangerous area in the world, the American Highway."

If the number of mower accidents continues to increase as it has during the last five years, the American lawn will soon be almost as dangerous as the American highway.

If you are buying a new mower, be sure that it carries the American Standards Assn. (ASA) seal. This certifies that the machine has met minimal safety requirements. About 85% of the power mowers now sold have this seal.

Obviously, this seal is not going to protect you from all accidents. Moreover, some ASA approved movers are much safer than other ASA models.

To protect yourself, ask several questions before you buy.

Is the casing which covers the rotating blade made of a heavy gauge metal that will give you some protection if the blade should fly off?

Some casings are quite flimsy. Others are made of metals that are difficult to weld if they are damaged.

Since moist grass clinging to the undercarriage causes metal to deteriorate, it is wise to check each spring to see how sturdy the undercarriage is before starting another year's mowing.

The average rotary mower produces an extremely high number of revolutions per second. If 15 or 20 seconds must pass before the blade stops rotating, the engine shaft is often bent. This requires a major repair job.

Surprising as it may seem, some mowers are sold with no thought given to catching grass. If you are not catching lawn clippings now, you probably will want to sometime in the next few years. In the case of older mowers, the cost of welding attachments is sometimes prohibitive when the life expectancy of the machine is considered.

Next week: Safe operation of your power mower.

'Stabilization' of Fort Hartsuff Is Well Along

SUNDAY JOURNAL AND STAR COLORPHOTO BY A. L. DUEMEY

Ord—Once the warring Sioux burned the settlers out of this area; later, in desperation, the pioneering homesteaders fought armed battles with the Pawnee and Sioux.

Then the U.S. Cavalry came.

Establishing one of the last forts ever built for protection against Indians, the government erected Fort Hartsuff in 1874. As a symbol of security and an opportunity for pioneer socializing, the fort provided a stabilizing influence during the era when Nebraska was tamed.

In 1881, when need for the post had passed and the war department ordered it abandoned, its some 14 acres were sold for farmland. The commanding officer's residence became a silo.

Fort Hartsuff's crumbling ruins 10 miles northwest of Ord lay neglected until Dr. Glen Auble of Ord bought the site in 1946, in hopes of renewing interest in its historical significance.

The State Game Commission took up Auble's "no strings attached" offer in 1961, but lack of funds delayed the restoration project until 1965, when Neighborhood Youth Corps enrollees were recruited to begin the clean-up job.

Now the work, which project supervisor Bob Killen calls "stabilization of existing buildings," is well under way and the Game Commission hopes to have the fort open to visitors early in the summer of 1967.

Visitors reach the restored fort by turning off Highway 11 near Elyria, about midway between Ord and Burwell, then crossing the North Loup River and following a marked gravel road to the site about 2½ miles east of the river.

Plans call for the post-adjutant's office to serve as a visitor information center. The commissioned officers' headquarters will become a musuem, and the guardhouse—following original blueprints from the War Dept.—will be restored exactly.

The entire fort won't be rebuilt, said Killen, but the commission will stabilize the ruins and provide explanations of what each building was.

Stabilization is being accomplished by use of a special polysulphide deep-penetrating surface sealer on the original masonry. The sealer strengthens the original material so that rebuilding is not necessary. Next, a siliconized epoxy exterior masonry coating, color-matching the existing exterior walls, is applied as additional protection.

Heflin

'Stagecoach' to Cheyenne Again

Heflin, in One, Speaks Up for Remakes

Ann-Margret

Now at the Stuart is the thriller - comedy "Blindfold." It stars Rock Hudson as a New York psychiatrist who is up against an organization that maintains an international black market in brains. Audience recommendation doesn't include children.

Opening Friday at the Stuart is "Stagecoach." The Cheyenne-bound stage brings together nine people of varied backgrounds, attitudes and ambitions. There has been formidable Indian trouble, and only the urgency of the trip for each of the travelers persuades the stage to hit the road. Adult-mature youth.

By VERNON SCOTT

But soon now, it is more a museum piece than an entertainment milestone. It was black and white, for small screens. If it were released for general consumption it would bomb at the boxoffice.

Producer Marty Rackin didn't help when he sent a telegram to the grizzled Ford telling him, "If you'd made it right the first time, I wouldn't be doing it again."

Ann - Margret has been blasted for not living up to Clair Trevor's performance as the prostitute. Alex Cord, everyone agrees, is no John Wayne as the Ringo Kid.

Bing Crosby has been criticized for not giving the part of the drunken doctor the same flavor as the late Thomas Mitchell. Robert Cummings has been scathed for failing to live up to Burton Churchill's performance as the banker.

Slim Pickens, however, hasn't been blasted for taking the reigns as the stage driver from Andy Devine; and Micheal Connors, in the eyes of many, did as well as John Carradine as the gambler.

Heflin thinks the new "Stagecoach" doesn't deserve the knocks it's getting. He defends the 1966 version with the opinion that it should be judged on its own merits.

Stock Car Thriller

"A Big Hand for the Little Lady" is currently on the showbill at the Varsity. A Western without Indians and starring Henry Fonda and Joanne Woodward, it's laced with comedy and highlighted by a surprise funny ending. General audience.

Opening Tuesday at the Varsity is "Fireball 500," with teen favorites, Frankie Avalon, Annette Funicello and Fabian.

Avalon and Fabian portray death-defying stock car drivers. Racing scenes from the NASCAR Grand National tracks in California and Florida add special she-bang thrills. Adult, mature youth audience.

Many years ago an Elkinsburg, Pa., Bible class decided that they would promote the dandelion as the official flower for Father's Day because "the more it is trampled on, the more it grows."

I'm glad they got nowhere fast with that bit of whimsy, it seems so unkind. My preference is to recognize the rose as the appropriate flower for the day, for in the infinite variety and beauty of the rose I see the many faces of fatherhood; the aspiration of fathers to grow, not underfoot but ever upward.

I once knew of a father of a large family who, feeling financial pressure, complained to a neighbor:

"I'm 42 years old and I'll never be a success."

The neighbor replied:

"You have a lovely family of children who love you. I know a man who has a million dollars and a Maltese cat and would be happy to trade places with you."

So what is success, Dad?

If that child who bears your name and in whose veins your blood flows looks at you with love-filled eyes; if you have made stepping stones of his stumbling blocks; given of yourself to him in greater measure than you have given him material blessings—You are a success.

60 State School Superintendent J. L. McBrien termed the action of the Creighton School Board in refusing to grant diplomas to three graduates who refused to wear caps and gowns at graduation "illegal, unconstitutional, undemocratic, un-American."

Rodgers

Symphony Orchestra, Chorus Plan Evening With

RODGERS and HAMMERSTEIN

Hammerstein

You can spend "An Evening With Rodgers and Hammerstein" next Saturday or Sunday at the Pinewood Bowl in Pioneers Park.

The concert will be presented by the Lincoln Symphony Orchestra and the Lincoln Symphony Chorale under the direction of Leo Kopp.

"The purpose of this program is to expose the Lincoln Symphony Orchestra and Chorale to more people so they realize the music they present is not just 'high brow,'" said Leo Hill, president of Lincoln Symphony Orchestra Assn. He noted the music they will present Saturday and Sunday at 8 p.m. is from hit shows during the last several years.

The concert will consist of songs from these shows: "Carousel," "State Fair," "The King and I," "South Pacific," "Sound of Music" and "Oklahoma."

Hill said Kopp will direct a 35-member group selected from the Lincoln Symphony complement. He will come here from Cleveland, O., where he is conducting a concert by the Cleveland Orchestra. The regular conductor of the Lincoln Symphony, Kopp also conducts summer concerts in Chicago, where he lives.

The 60-voice Chorale, trained by Hugh Rangeler of Lincoln, became a permanent organization just this year. Previously each chorus was organized for just one performance.

Since then choruses have also presented "An Evening With Cole Porter" and "An Evening with Lerner and Loewe."

Hill said the Lincoln Jaycees will serve as ushers and the stage hands' union is providing their services on lighting and sound.

The concert is free but contributions are being accepted.

South Sees Poitier

Dollars Count

Throughout most of Hollywood's history, that comment has been offered for films concerning Negro themes and featuring Negro actors.

The situation is different now.

Example: "A Patch of Blue," in which Negro Sidney Poitier befriends a blind white girl, Elizabeth Hartman, who falls in love with him.

"The picture was the second biggest grosser at the Loew's theater in Atlanta — second only to release of 'Gone with the Wind,'" reports an MGM man.

Only one concession was made to southern audiences: The kiss between Poitier and Miss Hartman was cut.

Poitier seems to have the magic name to break down southern prejudices against films with Negroes. United Artists reports that "Lilies of the Field," for which Poitier won the Academy Award two years ago, was widely circulated in the South.

The same is true of Universal's "To Kill a Mockingbird," which dealt with southern justice for Negroes of a generation ago.

"I've found that theater men in the South are the same as they are everywhere. If they can smell a buck, they'll play the picture. If they can't smell a buck, they won't. It's as simple as that," said Staley Kramer, an expert in producing controversial films.

The End, March Says

Hollywood (AP) — "I think it's time to hang up my hat," said Fredric March, chewing the tag end of a cigar.

The two-time Academy winner ("Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," 1932; "The Best Years of Our Lives," 1946) had just finished a scene with Paul Newman and Martin Balsam for "Hombre."

March . . . in "Hombre" role.

"Here I am making a picture, feeling as tired as I have ever been, when I should be with my family," he said. "It doesn't make sense."

March had just returned from 13 grueling weeks on location in the Arizona and Nevada deserts and mountains.

The actor said that he survived the location only through the support of his wife (and often co-star) Florence Eldridge. During their stay in Las Vegas they celebrated their 39th wedding anniversary. Their home is in Connecticut.

March, who will be 69 in August, has had one of the screen's most distinguished careers. Perhaps his greatest work was in his portrayal of American character, whether as Mark Twain, Willy Loman or the idealistic banker of "Best Years."

Madonna and Child

Christmas Stamp Reproduces Part Of Old Painting

The five cent stamp, to be issued Nov. 1 with first-day ceremonies at Christmas, Mich., will be printed in five colors.

Lettering on the vertical stamp will be in red-gold.

GFWC Commemorative Stamp

A 5-cent postage stamp commemorating 75 years of service by the General Federation of Women's Clubs will be issued with first day ceremonies Sept. 12 in New York City.

The stamp marking the Federation's diamond jubilee depicts two women attired in styles to span the history of the organization. To the left of the horizontal stamp is a Gay 90's woman in a bustle gown with wasp waist and leg o'mutton sleeves, wearing an ornate hat and carrying a parasol. A modern woman in a chic sheath dress is to the right of the stamp. Both figures are in pink. They are separated by an oval in blue in which appears in black "75 Years of Service for Freedom and Growth." At the top of the stamp is "General Federation of Women's Clubs" in black. At the bottom, in blue, is "United States Postage 5c."

Collectors desiring first day cancellations may send addressed envelopes, together with remittance to cover cost of the stamps to be affixed, to the Postmaster, New York, N.Y. 10001.

Parkway Issue

Postmaster General Lawrence F. O'Brien has announced that the Great River Road commemorative postage stamp will be issued Oct. 21 with first day ceremonies in Baton Rouge, La.

The 5-cent stamp points attention to what has been termed the longest parkway in the world, stretching from Canada to the Gulf of Mexico. Ten states and two Canadian provinces are cooperating in completion of the 5,600 miles of road from Kenora, Canada, to New Orleans.

THE NEW SCIENCE

Or Pictures Designed to Help a Career

By GINNY FISHER

In the TV stardom game, actors tend to capitalize on every possible publicity asset and have even been known to boast about habilities. It pays, with money and fame, to be seen sipping sodas in the right drugstore; to shave your head completely bald and to announce an animal really talks to you. (Natch, but there's always the risk of being somewhat misunderstood in these escapades!)

It also pays great dividends to have a happy, healthy and (hopefully) photogenic spouse and family. Publicity-wise this can add up to loads of press clippings. In some cases this has slightly toned-up a TV series, made no difference in others and, for several has been a lost cause. Occasionally, an attractive family, either in the background or actually in the series, can quietly add up to a phenomenal success—such as 14-year-run.

Nelson clan — ending 14 years on ABC-TV.

This Family rules "Bewitched": Elizabeth Montgomery stars; husband Bill Asher directs; son William held up shooting last year; son Robert's arrival added baby to storyline.

In close harmony is the family of MacDonald Carey who missed success in nightime TV, finally hit it in daytime "Days of Our Lives."

Just starting both a hit series, Batman, and a family (first arrival due in August) are Burt Ward and wife (Bonnie)

DRAMA NIGHT: It's Year, Possibly Less, Away

By RICK DU BROW

Hollywood (UPI) — The ABC network has committed itself to monthly, two-hour color television productions of major, established, "contemporary" stage plays by the season after next—and perhaps earlier.

This pivotal step toward ending the famine for viewers who enjoy good drama—and comedy—is chiefly the result of two factors:

—The better-than-expected rating gathered by CBS-TV's recent, acclaimed presentation of "Death of a Salesman." About 16 million persons are estimated to have watched this stage classic.

ABC-TV says the properties being negotiated for its once-a-month entry, "Sunday Night at the Theater," include three Pulitzer prize winners: "A Streetcar Named Desire" by Tennessee Williams, "The Diary of Anne Frank" by Frances Goodrich and Albert Hackett, and "You Can't Take It With You" by George S. Kaufman and Moss Hart.

Although the series is planned for 1967-68, the network says it is going to try to get one or two productions on the air next season.

Also in the coming season the network will offer the debut of a new weekly one-hour series of original dramas, musicals and documentaries entitled "ABC Stage 67," employing prominent talents.

ABC-TV said that "Sunday Night at the Theater" will represent the "largest financial investment in television history for a series of live or taped dramas." The budget is estimated at $625,000 per show. One factor that makes such thinking credible is the tremendous cost of top hold-out movies.

Producer of "Sunday Night at the Theater" will be David Susskind's firm, which produced "Death of a Salesman" for CBS-TV.

In fact, the Susskind organization, the most prominent in video today in terms of quality, has made a spectacular showing in announcements of drama shows by all three networks:

—For NBC-TV, his company will put on "Othello" with Sidney Poitier and, perhaps, George C. Scott.

—From CBS-TV next season, the firm will produce "The Glass Menagerie" by Tennessee Williams and "The Crucible" by Arthur Miller.

TV Repair Gyp Can Be Jailed

Chicago Daily News Special

Los Angeles — Dozens of television repair racketeers have been put out of business under a new California law. Others have been fined up to $5,000 and jailed for as long as 90 days.

"I won't say this has solved all our problems," says Daniel Weston, chief of the Electronic Repair Bureau, which was created by the California Anti-Fraud Act. "But we've gotten rid of the worst offenders, and we're gaining on the situation."

Weston estimates Californians have been gypped out of a minimum of $6 million a year in fraudulent charges for TV repair work.

Under the law, all television repair dealers must register, paying a fee of $25 to $50 a year. The fees support the costs of Weston's office in investigating complaints.

It has made more than 3,000 investigations in its two years in business. It brought criminal charges in 48 cases and won 39 convictions. It also suspended 15 licenses.

"Just having Weston's investigators around tends to frighten the dishonest repairman out of business," says an assistant district attorney in Los Angeles.

The law permits Westen to suspend the license of a dealer for using untrue or misleading advertising; for making false promises to influence a customer to authorize repairs; and for "any other conduct which can be described as fraud, dishonest dealing or gross negligence."

A related law requires repairmen to give a written estimate of charges if they remove a set from the home to fix it. If the charge is over $15, the estimate must be itemized. The second law is in effect only in Los Angeles, where the biggest problem is, but applies statewide if the customer asks for an estimate.

Also, the law says, a repairman can't keep a set pending payment of charges if they run higher than the estimate.

Hootin' Holly Goes Western

NEBRASKAland Days Pass in Review As Rovin' Gal Remembers the Big Week

By HOLLY SPENCE

Myself, well, I took the "bull" by the horns . . . and for a city slicker like me, that's quite an undertaking.

Every story must have a beginning . . . even my rootin' tootin' rovin' experiences as a NEBRASKAland Days reporter . . . so I hitched up my nag and trotted out to see the genial old rascals, Neb and Raska.

Unaccustomed as I am to the shoot 'em up tactics of the wild and wooly West, I feel that after my shivering experience with cowpunching, a degree is in order for bravery and valor beyond the call of a reporter's duty.

When they said go Western . . . I took it to heart . . . boots, spurs, ten gallon hat and the denim duds . . . the only thing missing was the horse, of course. When you're going to promote something, go in it heart and soul, I always say.

My spurs don't jingle jangle anymore, the boots have drifted away to hillbilly heaven and my hat, still heavy with prairie dust, has been tossed on the hook, but I still have the blistered feet, callused heels, aching fingers, red eyes, bumps and bruises to prove that "I was there."

It all started a week ago Friday and wild horses couldn't have driven me away from any of the festivities.

Sleepless nights? Well, they weren't even long enough to be classified as nights! The first few hours found Indian war chants throbbing through my head. It's a good thing the palefaces at the powwow didn't concentrate on rain dances, for you never can tell how much Indian blood that Nebraska weatherman has in him.

Last Sunday morning I was up and at 'em . . . a week later it's hard to lift an eyelid, but what a week this has been. Never let it be said that NEBRASKAland isn't "where the fun begins," for there was narry a dull moment.

Reactions? They ran from the ridiculous to the sublime. From the patriotism of the concert under the stars by the Strategic Air Command Band to my rip roaring gun slinging in the High Noon Shootdown.

And thrills . . . you name them, they came my way. What a sight to see . . . me shaking in my boots and trying to hold on to Raska. Or Hootin' Holly and her six-guns. Considering I've never seen a real live gun . . . I'd say I fared pretty well.

And standing right next to the First Lady of the Land . . . that's something to shout about. She was a real first-class charmer. But then my head really swooned, when I crept up on Charlton Heston at the reviewing stand during the parade.

And my first rodeo . . . lots of new words to add to the vocabulary . . . why, I ought to be a real expert on frontier lore.

My usual toe-tapping was reserved strictly for the Beatles, but those boots really hit the pavement when the old-time fiddlers started their hoedown.

Why the parade director for the big Wednesday night show even chauffered me back to work in the midst of the parade riding in his little motorized cart. I might even classify myself as a kind of grand marshal of the Conestoga capers.

I'm glad that I'm a kid at heart . . . for if I weren't . . . I'd probably be all paraded out. But my eyes still shine when those bands start marching and the fantasy world comes promenading.

But there were other firsts for me . . . square dancing, muzzle loading, roping, sharp shooting and a bevy of others.

Now it's all over . . . even the shouting. Time to rest up . . . recuperate . . . slow down . . . take life easy . . . why, I'd go crazy if I did that. The pace has been faster, the times funnier and the people delightful. I should be ready . . . and should have accumulated 40 winks by the time next year's NEBRASKAland Days festivities fill the air.

Mexico Plans 'Pullman City'

If a newly formed organization has its way, about 12,000 visitors won't have any trouble finding accommodations in Mexico City during the 1968 Olympic Games. They'll sleep in the railroad cars which take them to the Mexican capital.

The idea is being promoted by an organization called Villa Fiesta Mexicana.

The sleeping cars would take visitors from the United States and Canada as part of regular trains, and once there they would be grouped in a "Pullman City." This is to have a shopping center and space for 3,000 house trailers to take care of those who drive.

The organization says it has lined up 300 compartment-type Pullman cars from U.S. railroads.

Focus on Youth! FUN FOR

It's Beatles Here; U.S. Likes Sinatra

Frank Sinatra, who swooned and crooned young chicks 20 years ago, moved back into the spotlight with his "Strangers in The Night" according to a United Press International survey.

There were four newcomers to the survey this week . . . Dusty Springfield, the Standells, the Shondells and the Animals.

The top 10 in the UPI survey:

1. "Strangers In The Night," Frank Sinatra.
2. "Paint It Black," Rolling Stones.
3. "Paperback Writer," The Beatles.
4. "You Don't Have To Say You Love Me," Dusty Springfield.
5. "Dirty Water," The Standells.
6. "Did You Ever Have To Make Up Your Mind?" Lovin' Spoonful.
7. "Hanky Panky," The Shondells.
8. "Barefootin'," Robert Parker.
9. "Groovy Kind Of Love," Mindbenders.
10. "Don't Bring Me Down," Animals.

Trans-Texas will require persons wanting to take advantage of the low rate to apply two weeks in advance of their trip for certification as first-timers. Then Trans-Texas will run a check of all its past certificates through an electronic data machine to make sure nobody tries more than once.

Oceanside Parks Oregon Attraction

Salem, Ore. (UPI) — Some people thought Gov. Oswald West was a little nutty when he pushed through a law in 1913 declaring a 377-mile ribbon of Oregon beach a "public highway."

There were only 6,428 motor vehicles in Oregon then. And the "public highway" consisted only of the land between the high and low tide marks.

But that was enough to preserve almost all of the 400 miles of spectacularly beautiful Oregon coast for public use.

The predominantly Republican state thought a lot of the Democratic governor's ideas were strange. West served only one term, from 1911 to 1915. In that four-year span he awakened Oregonians to the abundance of natural beauty and splendor within their state's borders.

West sparked the program that has seen the development of 199 state parks, waysides and recreation areas in Oregon covering a total of 68,572 acres. They range in size from the half-acre Dyer Wayside to the 8,058-acre Silver Falls Park in the timbered Cascade Mountain foothills.

Oregon's rapidly expanding tourist boom has focused new attention on the parks system. Most of the tourists visit the ocean parks.

A $6 million crash program to provide a beach access—complete with parking and sanitary facilities — every three miles along the coast has just been launched.

Oregonians now recognize the value of the beaches. Last year the legislature changed their designation from "public highway" to "recreation area."

But the highway department has no plans to remove the "Beach Speed Limit 25" signs.

NOTES AND SKETCHES FROM PAUL BROWN'S

INQUISITIVE PEN

THE "HERMITAGE" —NEAR NASHVILLE, TENN.

Jackson's Hermitage

Andrew Jackson — seventh President of the United States, hero of the Battle of New Orleans, fighter of both Indian and white man — purchased the Hermitage, a 425-acre estate 13 miles east of Nashville, Tenn., in 1804.

Today the Hermitage is operated as a grass and beef cattle farm. In Jackson's day, the farm produced cotton and corn.

Wife Selects a Site

The general's wife, Rachel, selected the site for the Hermitage mansion in 1818. The original house was an unpretentious square brick structure. The mansion is maintained as Jackson left it when he died in 1845. You can see the original furniture and fixtures — and most of Mr. and Mrs. Jackson's personal effects.

There is a flower garden that is an outstanding example of early American garden design, containing 50 varieties of plants and great hickory and magnolia trees planted by the general.

Gen. Jackson's tomb is located in the southeast corner of the garden. It was built by Gen. Jackson in 1831 over his wife's grave with a vault for himself. Many other members of their family are buried nearby — including Uncle Alfred, a freed slave who wanted to be buried near Gen. Jackson. Uncle Alfred was a favorite house-servant at the Hermitage.

History Carved Into Cedar Pole Towering Above Holt County Hill

Atkinson—Historical notes are ringing bells across NEBRASKAland as the state continues to prepare to observe its 100th year of statehood. Thus reminders of past history are born anew.

Pointing skyward nearly 100 feet, a barren cedar pole stripped of beauty but bearing the marks of history stands high on a hilltop overlooking the Niobrara River valley in northern Holt County.

The pole was cut and brought from the wooded river region by a group of pioneers for a July 4 celebration in 1884.

Wagons rolled over trails bringing families from the east, west, north and south to join in the fun and celebrate the day of independence upon the prairies of Holt County.

The old cedar pole stands like a monument with no sign of decay. The bark is gone but the marks of another generation are upon it: Jack knives carved initials enclosed within a heart are plainly legible.

While the pole was set up primarily to serve as a flag pole it served other purposes as well.

When danger threatened or some impious visitors or other matters affecting the settlers arose the community "Paul Revere" scurried to the hilltop post—and up went the flag.

The alert might mean Indians were coming, vigilantes were at work, a prairie fire was raging—a government revenue man was nosing around in the canyons.

Community surrounding have changed. The nearby store is no more. Footprints are no longer seen upon the sands, the lawless no longer cause alarm, but the old flag pole still stands.

Sentinel . . . Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Chaffin and Merrill Anderson join cedar shaft in viewing Niobrara Valley.

Haste Begets Hangover

The thrill of spotting a cute defensive coup can be intoxicating — but it can leave you with a hangover if you play too quickly to the next trick.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	2 ♣	2 N.T.	Pass
3 ◇	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	All Pass

Opening lead: Heart ace

The realities of the scoring table seldom favor doubling your non-vulnerable opponents when there is a chance to go instead for a vulnerable game, so North rightly bid two no trump over West's butt-in. The final four spade contract had an excellent chance of success, although it could have been defeated as the cards lay.

West happened on the bright lead of ace and another heart. But after East had won the second heart lead with the king, he got a bit excited and dropped the ball.

Although East realized that declarer was out of hearts, too, chances were pretty good that a third heart lead would promote a trump trick for West — for the fact that East himself held the ten meant that West need only hold jack-third to guarantee a trick.

So pleased was East with this analysis, that he returned a heart right away — allowing declarer to throw his single club and claim the rest of the tricks after West ruffed.

Had East reviewed the bidding before returning a heart, he would have realized it was hardly likely the contract could be set if South were void of clubs — so he should have cashed the club ace first.

The Evil Eye

When Is It Modern Art?

New York (UPI)—The Museum of Modern Art jolted Americans 30 years ago by displaying dangling bits of metal and a solid black painting. But its last major exhibition was the work of an artist who has been dead these last 115 years.

The only people shocked by the show of English 19th century Painter J. M. W. Turner were those art fans who claim the New York museum has abdicated its original aim to show the new and the daring.

The Museum of Modern Art never has held an exhibition of "pop art" although it included several examples in shows on current U.S. art.

Its "op art" show was staged last year after the movement reached its peak. Kinetic art — sculpture and paintings that wiggle, squeak and flash lights—was hailed at a San Francisco exhibit as the most powerful new art movement today. Kinetics probably will be presented at the Museum of Modern Art "in a year or two," a spokesman said.

The director of the Turner exhibition, Monroe Wheeler, confirmed in an interview that the museum does not show art movements as soon as they burst upon the scene.

"We follow the public rather than lead," he said. "We show what seems to us significant."

Country-Western Success

Four in the Charts for Eddy

Eddy Arnold, probably the best voice in country-western singing, has landed on the pop charts—as well as the country-western—with his last four single records.

After "What's He Doing in My World?" did well about a year ago, Arnold sat down in

MUSIC

Nashville with Chet Atkins to choose tunes for an LP to be called "My World."

"It wasn't to be songs with 'world' in them, necessarily," he says, "but I said I thought one good tune for it would be 'Make the World Go Away.' It had been done by two other artists already, but Chet said we'd do it."

Released as a single, that became a hit. His third was "I Want To Go with You," written by Hank Cochran, who also wrote "What's He Doing in My World?"

His fourth — and present — entry on the charts is "The Last Word in Lonesome Is Me," by Roger Miller.

"Roger and I did a show together in Chicago a year ago in April," Arnold says, "and he did this song. It was on the B side of his record, 'Engine Engine No. 9.' It was a ballad and he seems to have better luck with the rhythm things. So I said to him, 'This is a very pretty song. If it doesn't happen for you, I'll remember it and I might do it later on myself.'

"He is delighted that I've done it."

Arnold has written a few songs that have become hits: "I'll Hold You in My Arms" and "Just a Little Lovin' Will Go a Long Way," and, in collaboration with Sandy Walker, "You Don't Know Me."

And he has been received by the pop as well as country public before. His "Bouquet of Roses" sold over a million copies in 1948. "You have to get into the pop buyer market to sell a million," he says. "There are not enough dyed-in-the-wool country fans to make a record a million seller."

He said, "I almost became a pop singer in the beginning —nobody knows that. But when I came off the farm (in Henderson, Tenn.) and tried to make a living singing and playing the guitar, I didn't know there was any difference. I just sang them straight. I never attempted to sing with a nasal sound.

Arnold cut his first record, "Mommy Please Stay Home with Me," in 1945, for RCA. He has been with RCA ever since. Three or so records later he had his first hit, "That's How Much I Love You."

The biggest change in Arnold's music has been the switch from twanging background instruments to a string orchestra.

At his first concert in New York's Carnegie Hall, in May, he used string most of the time and for one group of old songs accompanied himself on the guitar.

"I do a little bit of everything—country-western, pop and folk — in my performances," he says. "I have no intention of going all the way to pop."

At Carnegie Hall, the song which most delighted the audience was one he sang with guitar only—a cattle call which displayed a beautiful, floating tone and unaffected style and evoked strong feelings of nostalgia in many listeners.

He lives on 100 acres 10 miles from Nashville but lets his riding horses get fat while he plays golf and goes boating. He dresses in business suits and goes "cowboy" only when appearing at rodeos, where western garb is everybody's costume. He speaks without twang and without downhome phrases. He gives

But he looks outdoorsy and his blue eyes gaze steadily, with the expectation that everybody he meets will be neighborly. His conversation is warm, sometimes boyish and frankly emotional. Like many country people, he enjoys talking about his family.

He says he likes to buy clothes for his wife on impulse, and she likes it, too, because he spends more for them than she does. He teases his son, a junior in high school, that he'll be glad to help him with his phone calls to girls and to drive for him when he's out on dates.

And he misses his daughter, married last fall, even though she comes over two or three times a week.

Asked whether he worries about being "too country" or "not country enough" for fans, he said. "I just live the way I live and forget it."

To meet Eddy Arnold and to listen to him sing is to decide that he has the best of both worlds.—Mary Campbell.

Cather Items

Under a $10,000 Woods Charitable Fund grant, the restoration of Willa Cather's childhood home in Red Cloud begins this year. The public's help is asked by the Memorial in recovering articles scattered when an auction was held after the death of Willa's mother in 1931.

Political Biography Of Nikita

Khrushchev—A Career. By Edward Crankshaw; Viking.

His aim has been to tell "the sort of man he was, his background, his changing environment, his path to the top," and then "how he ruled, how he himself was ruled by the combination of his own past and the forces engendered by a changing Russia and a changing world, and how he fell."

Serious students of contemporary Russia may or may not approve of Crankshaw's highly detailed history of the Khrushchev career, but to a lay reader it is a thorough and impressive study.

For the early part of the premier's life, Crankshaw—or any other writer—is faced with an almost complete lack of verifiable information. So he has played the detective in making deductions and has dug out a few references that Khrushchev made in later life to those early years.

Once the young Bolshevik had started his political climb, his trail could be followed more closely. Crankshaw delves diligently into the tricky means through which Khrushchev shrewdly made his way to Stalin's inner circle and always managed to line up on the right side when there were Kremlin conflicts.

He traces the maneuvering after Stalin's death and Khrushchev's tactics in ousting Malenkov. There is much more in his account about Khrushchev's rise than his fall.

Crankshaw is not a detached recorder of the events he is describing. He uses comment interpretation and analysis throughout the book, and he has a penchant for broad generalization; such as, "The conflict between his natural humanity and the corruption which bit deeply into him during the years of his rise to the top was to be the great drama of the last 10 years of his career."

Read this study of a dictator's career and you will have a better understanding, not only of Khrushchev, but of Russia as well.

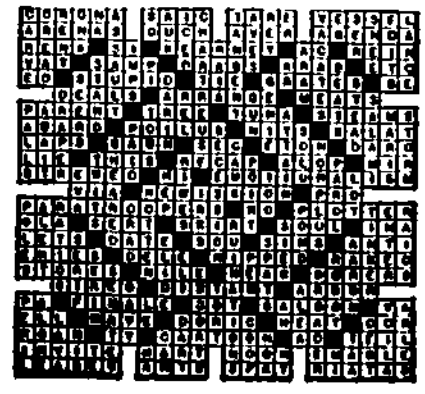
Puzzle Solution



SANDOZ on CUSTER: Little Bighorn Opportunistic Presidential Nomination Bid

The Battle of The Little Bighorn. By Mari Sandoz; Lippincott.

There is something in the American national character which seems to prize, even romanticize, battle defeats and military adversity almost as much as victory.

Consider Bunker Hill, Valley Forge, the burning and sacking of the White House, the Alamo, Bull Run, sinking of the battleship Maine, Pearl Harbor, Bataan, Guadalcanal, the Bulge.

What we celebrate here is Custer's famous last stand, the complete annihiliation of three well-armed troops of the Seventh Cavalry, 212 officers and men, on a barren Montana hillside.

Without reference to all previous publications on the matter, and although it might seem like the zenith of parochialism, this reviewer must say the late Mari Sandoz' work is as well-rounded and understandable an explanation as one can get.

Political Motivation

Under a cloud of Grant administration disfavor, the Civil War's dashing boy-general had the assignment of scouting and blocking the Indians from escaping Gibbon's infantry.

That he was disobedient and jumped the huge summer Sioux Nation encampment was bad enough. That he refused to heed repeated warnings the Indian strength was overwhelmingly large demonstrates an intolerable military recklessness

But Miss Sandoz argues

Custer was playing for enormous stakes, trying to parlay another grandstand conquest of the Indians into a Democratic party presidential nomination.

Into Ambush

Benteen was sent into the profitless wilds. Reno and his battalion swept into the bottoms, to be repulsed and sent reeling. Custer went further north with his favorites beside him . . . into ambush.

It all happened 90 years ago June 25. If a movie is ever made of this book it should be required viewing at least once annually on every Sioux reservation. But Miss Sandoz' work ought to find a place on many shelves.

Jottings

James Agee, who died in 1955 at 45, left a small but impressive portfolio of written works so infused with his sensitivity for life that it quickly won him a devoted coterie.

Available for the first time in paperback is his telling study of poverty in the South during the depression, "Let Us Now Praise Famous Men" (Ballentine). Included are Walker Evans' fine photographs. Other Agee paperbacks are his moving short novel "The Morning Watch" (Ballentine); two volumes of movie criticism, "Agee on Film" (Beacon), and his Pulitzer Prize novel, "A Death in the Family" (Avon).

Jackets First

Miniatures

A tribute to the late President Kennedy is Random House's "A John F. Kennedy Memorial Miniature," four tiny volumes in a giftworthy four-inch slipcase. Eulogies delivered in the Capitol Rotunda are in one volume. The others include Kennedy's inaugural address, wit and wisdom.

A similarly boxed set on Pope John XXIII includes a book on faith in addition to those on wit, wisdom and eulogies.

Naked Into the Cauldron

Two lovers, a white boy and girl, witness the murder of a young Negro in a Southern town. One witness, the boy, isn't a native of the region but the girl is. Her father is one of the killers.

The torment of this pair in deciding what to do with their awful truth is built by Davis Grubb into a powerful yarn about the modern South.

He leaves no personal or family stone unturned in building for the reader a certain knowledge of what action the two witnesses must take.

For one, the outsider, his decision leads to oblivion. For the daughter of Dixie, with a heritage both of compassion and hate, of justice and terror, her decision leads to a life that promises to be more complete in its dignity and understanding.

Where literally hundreds of authors have explored the fringes of The Choice basic to all civil rights debate, Grubb plunges naked into the cauldron. There he shows the reader how hate, the shadow of our brother, can grow until it may turn us against ourselves.
